SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT,

UNITED PROVINCES,

TO

THE REGISTRAR,

ALLAHABAD UNIVERSITY.

Dated Naini Tal, 4th May, 1905.

SIR,

Educational Department.

I am directed to refer you to the remarks of the Hon'ble Pundit Sundar Lal, in his speech at the Meeting of the Legislative Council held at Lucknow on April 11th, 1905, regarding the proposal to establish a Central Law College (vide Part VI of the local gazette, dated 15th April).

2.—The Hon'ble Pundit stated that a scheme for the establishment of such a College was before the Government some time ago. This does not appear to be correct. It appears from the Resolution 152 ii) of the Syndicate (page 259 of the Minutes for 1903) that a sub-committee was appointed to draft a letter to Government on the subject. No such letter has, however, been received.

3.—I am now to ask for the detailed scheme prepared by the Syndicate, and I am to ask that it may specially be shown in what time the College is likely to be self-supporting.

I have the honour to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient servant,

S. H. BUTLER,

Secretary to Government.

APPENDIX C.

No. 351.

FROM

J. B. BRUNYATE, Esq.,

OFFG. DEPUTY SECRETARY TO THE GOVT. OF INDIA,

TO

THE SECRETARY

TO THE GOVT. OF THE UNITED PROVINCES,

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.

Simla, the 27th May, 1905.

SIR,

I am directed to forward, for the information of His Honour the

Lieutenant-Governor and for favour of communication to the University of Allahabad, a copy of the accompanying correspondence regarding the arrangements to be made for scholars of Indian Universities who visit the United Kingdom for the purpose of obtaining technical education in manufacturing establishments.

I have, etc.,

(Sd.) J. B. BRUNYATE,

Offg. Deputy Secretary to the Govt. of India.

No. ²⁸⁵~~XV-318A/3~~ OF 1905.

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.

Dated Naini Tal, the 15th June, 1905.

Copy, with copy of enclosures, forwarded to the Registrar, Allahabad University, for information.

By order, etc.,

A. F. FREMANTLE,

Under Secretary to Government.

Home
Department
Education).

1. Letter to the Government of Bombay, No. 89, dated the 28th January, 1905, and enclosures.
2. Letter from the Government of Bombay, No. 751, dated the 29th April, 1905.

No. 89, dated the 28th January 1905.

From—W. S. MARRIS, Esq., Deputy Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bombay, Educational Department.

I AM directed to forward, for the information of the Governor in Council, a copy of extracts of paragraphs 1 to 6 from a despatch* from the Secretary of State, and of its enclosure, offering certain suggestions for the avoidance of the difficulties which are encountered by scholars of Indian Universities who visit the United Kingdom for the purpose of obtaining technical education in manufacturing establishments.

* No. 169 Public, dated the 2nd December 1904.

2. The Secretary of State refers to the case of Mr. Kundanmal Almal Bhojwani, a graduate of the Bombay University, as illustrating the inconvenience which is ordinarily experienced in affording a scholar the necessary facilities for prosecuting his studies. I am to request that, with the permission of the Governor in Council, the Government of India may be informed of the circumstances in which Mr. Bhojwani was sent by the Bombay University as a scholar to London.

I am also to request that the attention of the University authorities may be invited to paragraphs 4 and 5 of the Secretary of State's despatch.

Extract, paragraphs 1 to 6, of despatch from Secretary of State No. 169 Public, dated the 2nd December 1904.

I have to address Your Excellency's Government with regard to the visits of scholars of Indian Universities to this country for the purpose of obtaining technical education in manufacturing establishments.

2. My observations are suggested by the case of Mr. Kundanmal Almal Bhojwani, a graduate of the Bombay University, to whom a certificate of identity was granted this year as announced in your Home Secretary's letter, Public, No. 65, dated the 1st September last.

3. It was stated in the certificate that Mr. Bhojwani's object in coming to England was study, and on his arrival he explained in a letter, dated the 17th August last, of which a copy is enclosed, that he desired to study in particular the process of manufacture in one or two highly technical industries, such as glass and soap making and to obtain admittance into the manufactories for that purpose.

4. Great difficulty was found in complying with his request for assistance in this matter, chiefly for the reason that he had no previous knowledge of any of the trades which he wished to study; and I therefore desire Your Excellency's Government to consider whether it would not be well to intimate to the authorities of the Indian Universities the nature of the difficulties which their young scholars may encounter if they desire to obtain technical instruction of this nature in the United Kingdom.

5. It would seem to be desirable that, before the arrival of such scholars in this country, enquiry should be made of this office by the University authorities, through Your Excellency's Government, or in such manner as you may think suitable, whether the technical education contemplated is likely to be obtainable. In each case the qualifications of the scholar should be fully set forth, together with any information which may be procurable as to his previous career, and it should be definitely stated whether he is prepared to pay the usual premium to induce a private firm to afford him the training which he requires.

6. It should be borne in mind that a first condition of any intelligent native of India deriving profit from a course of study in Europe is that he should have previously received the requisite scientific training and should have been thoroughly grounded by practical work in the rudiments of the manufactures which he is to study, so far as this is possible in India. He would then, and then only, be able to acquire information of real value by further enquiry in Europe, which would amply repay a moderate annual expenditure on premiums.

ENCLOSURE.

MR. K. A. BHOJWANI to India Office,

34, BEDFORD PLACE,
RUSSELL SQUARE, LONDON, W. C.,
17th August, 1904.

SIR,

I beg to state that I came from India very recently for the purpose of studying some technical art. I am sent up here by the University of Bombay as a scholar, and referred to the India Office for assistance and guidance.

I desire to study one or two subjects (at my option) out of the following six :—

1. Glassware.
2. Soap making.
3. Tin works.
4. China work.
5. Scent making.
6. Match making.

I have seen some manufactories, but I find that it is not possible for me singly to get admittance into the manufactories unless I get strong letters of recommendation from you, and introduced by you to some influential people who are connected with trade, and who will be able to fix me somewhere.

It is unfortunate that none of the Polytechnics should teach any of the subjects selected by me.

The encouragement lately given both by the Home Government and Government of India to Technical Education to a very great extent induces young Indians to take to technical work.

My failure in getting entrance into some institution or manufactory will not only be a disappointment for me but it will have prohibitive effect and check the aspirations of many an Indian to shine in the technical arts. More than that, it will frustrate the policy of Government.

I pray that you will be pleased to do for me all you can. May I be permitted to suggest that D. W. Gibbs & Co., soap makers, Wapping, E., deal largely with His Majesty's War Department. There may be many other companies who may have special dealings with the Government, and I trust they could be easily made to admit me.

I beg, etc.,

BHOJWANI KUNDANMAL ALUMAL, B.A.,

UNIVERSITY SCHOLAR.

The Under Secretary of State for India.

No. 751, dated Bombay Castle, the 29th April, 1905.

From—J. SLADEN, Esq., I.C.S., Acting Secretary to the Government of Bombay, Educational Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department (Education).

With reference to paragraph 2 of Home Department letter No. 89, dated the 28th January last, I am directed to state that the University Registrar reports that Mr. Kundanmal Aluma Bhojwani was elected Sir Mangaldas Nathubhai Scholar under ordinary regulations (pages 503-04 of the Bombay University Calendar for 1904-05) and no reference was made to this Government before Mr. Kundanmal went to England. The Syndicate has resolved to take steps in future to give effect, as far as possible, to the suggestions in paragraphs 5 and 6 of the Secretary of State's despatch which accompanied the letter above referred to, and to keep this Government informed of the names of the scholars elected from time to time so that they may be accredited to the India Office with a view to their obtaining such guidance in their further studies as may be necessary.

Agenda Item No. I.

On a motion by the Vice-Chancellor the Minutes of the Meetings of the Senate held on the 12th, 13th, 14th and 15th April and 17th July, 1905, were confirmed.

Mr. Cameron.—I wish, Sir, to ask your permission to propose a motion which is closely connected with the part of the business that has just been done. It is this—"That this meeting of the Senate notes with regret that in the meeting of 15th April decisions were arrived at involving serious changes in the courses of study—decisions which had neither the amount of consideration nor the fullness of warrant which their importance would seem to demand." In making this request I would invite your attention to three points—First, that it was not possible for the customary notice to be given of this motion. The full necessity for taking this step could only be apparent when the authorised account of the meeting of April 15th was published, and I received my copy of the Minutes only thirteen days ago. The second point is that there seems to be at present no rule which would exclude the consideration of such a motion although notice has not been given. We are still meeting in the anomalous circumstances under which we met in April. The third and most important point is that discussion of this motion need not be useless. Now that the Minutes have been passed these Regulations have to go up to the Chancellor for sanction, and it is but fair that he should know what is the state of mind in the Senate, that there is a deep and widespread feeling of dissatisfaction with these courses that have been passed. So much is this so that there was even under consideration a memorial to the Chancellor and—

(The Vice-Chancellor here ruled Mr. Cameron's remarks out of order, who thereupon resumed his seat).

Agenda Item No. II.

The Vice-Chancellor proposed that Government of India's letter No. 351, dated the 27th May, 1905, and enclosures, as given in Appendix A, regarding arrangements for scholars of Indian Universities visiting the United Kingdom for obtaining technical education in manufacturing establishments, be recorded.

The proposal was carried unanimously.

Agenda Item No. III.

The Vice-Chancellor moved that the proposed rules for travelling allowance to Fellows attending University meetings (vide Appendix B) be passed.

The Hon'ble Pt. Sundar Lal.—In seconding the motion which has been proposed by the Vice-Chancellor for your consideration, I will briefly explain the circumstances under which the proposed rules have been framed.

We are indebted to Government for a grant of Rs. 5,000 for travelling expenses to Fellows. The finances of our University for many years in the past have by no means been flourishing. We have been able just to pay our expenses and save practically nothing, and at one time it seemed absolutely necessary to increase our income by increasing the rates for examination fees. The extension of the area of the work of the University in the Central Provinces will, it is expected, increase our receipts, but it is not possible now to predict the amount with any degree of certainty. We have thus to meet our expenditure under this head with the amount granted, viz., Rs. 5,000.

Excluding the ex-officio members of the Senate, we have now 72 Fellows on our list (there being three vacancies not filled up yet). Of these twenty reside in Allahabad, and about twenty, roughly speaking, reside at short distances from Allahabad (at Lucknow, Benares, Fyzabad, Cawnpore and Jubbulpore, &c.) Rupees 10 may be taken to be the average second class railway fare for the journey to Allahabad and back in these cases.

About 32 Fellows live at more distant places such as Agra, Aligarh, Meerut, Jaipur, Jodhpur, Indore, Nagpur, &c.

Rupees 20 may be taken as the average cost of the journey to Allahabad and back by the second class in their cases.

We would not be far from the mark if, in making our estimate, we fix Rs. 15 as the average cost of the railway journey in the case of each Fellow. If 45 out-station Fellows attend a meeting, the cost comes to Rs. 675. Under our new rules the Senate has to meet at least four times in the year, and there may probably be five meetings in a year. The idea is to fix the dates of the meetings of the various Faculties, Boards of Studies, Boards of Examiners, &c., on days preceding and following the date of the meetings of the Senate on grounds both of economy and convenience. On an average, members of the Senate would probably have to attend about ten meetings in the year of one or more of these bodies. The railway fare for 45 Fellows for four meetings of the Senate in the year will be about Rs. 2,700, and the amount payable for the halting allowance at Rs. 3 per diem for ten days will be Rs. 1,350. The expenditure under this head is estimated at Rs. 4,000 in the year at the rate provided for in the draft rules.

There have been many meetings of the Senate this year to frame rules and to dispose of other important work of the University, and the proposal is to give these rules retrospective effect from the 1st January 1905, to reimburse, in part at least, the expenses of those who have attended. We have therefore been constrained to provide for the payment of the railway fare by the second class only. The rules recently made by the Madras University allow a first class fare for each journey for a Fellow, together with a third class fare each way for one servant, and halting allowance at Rs. 6 per diem. We regret that the fund at our disposal does not permit this. The expenditure on this scale would be about Rs. 8,000, whereas we have only Rs. 5,000 at our disposal for the purpose. The Madras University Senate is constituted of 100 Fellows, but perhaps the proportion of resident Fellows is very much larger. The Government grant to that University is Rs. 8,000. The distances are not so great as in our case, and that University saves about Rs. 45,000 a year after paying all its expenses and has a reserve fund of over four lakhs of rupees, from which it can easily meet any excess of expenditure under this head. Our resources are limited and we cannot afford to do the same. We must "cut our coat according to the cloth." This is why we are compelled to place before the Senate what at first sight seems to be a niggardly provision for the travelling expenses of Fellows.

I find two amendments on the paper. The suggestions they contain were not lost sight of. The second of these suggests that official Fellows should be given travelling allowances as fixed in the Civil Service Regulations, and to non-officials their actual expenses. The Civil Service Regulations give double first class railway fare each way to officers drawing Rs. 400 per mensem and double second class fare to others. The non-official Fellows would generally travel first class under the rule proposed. The total expenditure would be even greater than on the scale proposed for the Madras University. We were compelled to reject the idea suggested by this amendment though a provision on the scale suggested would perhaps more fully carry out the intention of Government.

The other amendment suggests the award of a third class fare for a servant (if any) to each Fellow. The number of Fellows actually attending our meetings may be smaller than provided for in our estimate, and some Fellows will probably not draw the allowance. As only a few Fellows will probably bring a servant with them, there will perhaps be not much difficulty in making provision for it if the Senate accepts the suggestion.

Mr. Cameron.—May I ask, Sir, if the Government mean this Rs. 5,000 to be a hard and fast limit? They could not know exactly what amount would be required, and it may be that the sum of Rs. 5,000 was only put forward tentatively.

The Vice-Chancellor.—I have no knowledge of the intention of Government on this point.

Mr. Ganga Prasad Varma.—I move the amendment which stands in my name, upon the acceptance of which Rule No. 1 will read as follows :—

“For all journeys performed by rail, one second class fare for himself and a third class fare for a servant, if any, each way, from his permanent place of residence to Allahabad and back.”

The intention of the Government in sanctioning Rs. 5,000 for travelling allowances for Fellows is that gentlemen from the mofussil while attending the meetings of the University should not be much out of pocket. A second class fare is the least that the Senate can sanction for its members, but it will not meet the requirements of many orthodox Hindu and Mahomedan Fellows who cannot avail themselves of Hotel facilities, and in whose case it is necessary that they should bring one or two servants with them. It will be unreasonable to ask the University to pay fare for a retinue of servants, but it is only fair that at least one servant should be allowed. After hearing the statement made by my esteemed friend, the Hon'ble Rai Sundar Lal Bahadur, I do not think it is possible for us to sanction first class fare to the Fellows. But I do not think that third class fare to a servant will mean very great addition to the estimated expenditure. Since every Fellow will not bring a servant with him, the total expenditure on account of servants will come to about Rs. 500 at the outside. I am sure this small amount can be provided.

Pandit Iqbal Kishan Kaul.—I second the amendment.

(Mr. Ward pointed out that the travelling allowance for servants would amount to Rs. 1,000.)

Rule No. 1 as amended was put to the vote and carried.

Amendment No. 2 (vide Appendix B) was, in the absence of Mr. G. N. Chakravarti, moved by Shaikh Naushad Ali Khan, who said "In proposing the amendment to the draft rules framed by the sub-committee with regard to the distribution of travelling allowances to senators of this University I particularly wish to draw the attention of the Senate to the fact that Madras University has already sanctioned one single first class fare and one single third class for his servant, and I do not therefore see any reason why this University should not do the same. If, as the Hon'ble Pandit Sundar Lal has told us that the sum allotted by the Government, viz., Rs. 5,000, is insufficient to enable the Senate to give us the first class fare it would be better to respectfully but firmly urge the Government to allot us more or enough to enable the Senate to give us a first class fare instead of passing permanent rules under which we cannot but get second class fare even if our finances permitted to grant the concession asked for. I feel therefore my duty to bring these points into favourable consideration of the Senate."

This was seconded by Mr. Karamat Husain, who pointed out to the letter of the Government of India which suggested that rules for travelling allowance of Fellows might be framed on the lines of the rules laid down in the Civil Service Regulations.

Mr. Jesse pointed out that the question of first or second class travelling allowance appeared to him to depend entirely on the financial position of the University and on the sums at its disposal. He expressed his strong opinion that all Fellows should be treated in exactly the same manner, and for this reason opposed Mr. Chakravarti's amendment proposing that "officials" should be granted double first class fare, while "non-officials" should merely get their expenses. He further pointed out that any such distinction would be invidious and was to be deprecated; that furthermore, if no definition as to expenses were made, bills might be sent in which it would be beyond the means of the University to pay. For these reasons, he said, he supported the proposal of the Vice-Chancellor and the Hon'ble Pandit Sundar Lal, and remarked that it would be easy to see at the end of a year whether the estimates would allow the sum allotted for travelling to be increased.

A doubt having arisen as to what was meant by the word "official," Mr. Ganga Prasad Varma said "Before coming to Allahabad I had a talk with Mr. Chakravarti on the subject of his amendment. By the word "official" he meant an official of the Government and not an official of the University. Mr. Chakravarti thought that there was no reason why an official of the Government, say, an Inspector of Schools, while coming to Allahabad to attend a Text Book Committee meeting, should draw double first class fare and why the same official should be asked to content himself with single second class fare each way while attending University meetings."

Amendment No. 2 was then put to the vote and lost.

Rev. Dr. Ewing asked whether first class fare could not be given to Fellows attending University meetings, as first class fare has been provided for by the Madras University.

Rev. Mr. Holland.—I believe an amendment I am about to move will meet Dr. Ewing's point. I agree with him that, if the Fellows of other Universities receive first class fares, we should have the same; though, to me personally, as a resident of Allahabad, the matter is one of complete indifference.

But the grant of Rs. 5,000 will not admit of this. Nor will it, I think, admit of the payment of even a servant's ticket, for which reason I felt bound to oppose the last motion, though fully sympathising with it. I move then that the Registrar be instructed to bring to the notice of Government that the sum they have allotted us is not large enough to admit of our carrying out the express desire of the Government of India, that the allowances should be in general conformity with the Civil Service Regulations.

Rev. Dr. Ewing.—Mr. Vice-Chancellor, while unable to advocate the amendment proposed by Mr. Chakravarti because of the impossible distinction involved in it, and while admitting the force of the figures which indicate that at present the sum allotted is insufficient to permit us to fix travelling allowance above second class fare, yet I would urge that the dignity of this University demands that we should ask for such an allotment of funds as will enable us in the future to substitute "first class" for "second class" in our rules. The Madras University has already fixed the rate at first class. The letter from Government which is before us mentions the Civil Service Regulations as a possible basis, and this, I believe, would mean double first class. We should have one rule for all and all should be first class. As this does not concern me personally, I am perhaps the better able to urge that we should not consent to put the Fellows of this University on a different basis from those of other Universities. I think Mr. Holland's suggestion would cover the case, but I would state the matter a little differently, and with the consent of the Senate would move that we ask the Government of the United Provinces to so increase the sum allotted for travelling allowance of Fellows that we shall be able to authorise a first class fare to each Fellow to and from his place of permanent residence.

The following resolution was then put to the vote and carried :—

“That we instruct the Syndicate to request the Government of these Provinces to make a larger grant next year for travelling allowance in order to enable the University to pay travelling allowance to all Fellows of the University other than those resident in Allahabad, on the basis of a single first class fare each way, with third class fare for a servant, in place of the second class fare now proposed.”

The following amended rules for travelling allowance to Fellows were then put to the vote and carried :—

“1. Travelling and halting allowances will be granted to a Fellow or a Member of a Faculty for attending meetings other than a Convocation or a meeting held solely for recommending a Fellow for nomination to be a member of the Council of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of the United Provinces for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations.

“2. Travelling and halting allowances under Rule 1 will be granted at the following rates :—

- (i) For all journeys performed by rail, one second class fare for each Fellow and a third class fare for his servant, if any, each way from his permanent place of residence to Allahabad, and back.
- (ii) For all journeys performed by road, eight annas per mile from his permanent place of residence to the nearest Railway Station, and back.
- (iii) For each day on which a meeting is attended, three rupees.”

N.B.—The above rules will have retrospective effect from the 1st of January, 1905.

The Hon'ble Pt. Madan Mohan Malaviya.—May I enquire for what purpose Darbhanga Castle is to be acquired for Rs. 35,000 ?

The Vice-Chancellor.—I have no official information.

The Hon'ble Pt. Madan Mohan Malaviya.—As the Senate is asked to approve the proposal to purchase it, the Government might be requested to take the Senate into their confidence and announce the particular purpose for which the Castle is to be acquired. It is stated in the letter from the Secretary to the Local Government to the Registrar, printed as Appendix B of the agenda notice, that the Government of India have decided to set aside among other items Rs. 35,000 for the purchase of Darbhanga Castle. That would show that a definite decision has been arrived at. Personally speaking I must say that I am not pleased to find that a substantial portion of the grant of Rs. 1,33,000, which the Government of India has made for the purposes of University education, is to be spent in acquiring Darbhanga Castle and in building an office for the Registrar. I think the Local Government should have found money for these purposes from its Provincial Budget for education and left the whole of the grant, minus the charge for the travelling allowances of Fellows and the Inspection charges, to which I do not object, to be devoted to the furtherance of higher University education. I regret to find that there is no suggestion in the correspondence relating to the appropriation of this grant which has been laid before the Senate, that any part of the grant is to be spent in directly promoting higher education. When the University Commission was appointed, it was said that one of the main objects of reform was to convert our existing Universities, which were hitherto only examining bodies, into teaching bodies. The Commission went about recording opinions among other matters as to how this might be done.

Proposals as to how the foundation of a teaching University might be laid in these Provinces were seriously discussed. All this raised high hopes in the minds of the public that something would really be done to provide education of a kind higher than what obtained here to the youth of these Provinces. It would be a sore disappointment if these hopes are not even partly realised and we are left exactly where we were before. It seems to me that it is the duty of the Senate to urge it very respectfully—but very strongly—upon the Government that the grant made by the Government of India, or at least the major portion of it, should be spent upon providing a higher degree of University education than what is available here at present at one important centre in these Provinces. I thought that was what was proposed to be done at one time. The grant, though small in itself, would, if kept intact, enable a respectable beginning to be made. I cannot reconcile myself to the idea that the grant should be devoted to objects which, though unobjectionable in themselves, should in the ordinary course of things be provided for by the Provincial Government out of its ordinary education grant. I also fear that if we allow this opportunity to pass without utilising this grant for making the beginning of a teaching University, we shall have to wait a long time before we can make any advance in that direction. It seems to me that the Government might, with advantage, have given the Senate an opportunity to express its opinion as to how the grant could best be spent in promoting University education, if it did not think it fit to leave it to the Senate to spend the money in the way it thought best in furtherance of that object. One might have hoped that the reformed Senate would be trusted to that extent.

The Vice-Chancellor.—Are you going to put forward any definite motion?

The Hon'ble Pt. Madan Mohan Malaviya.—I have laid my views before the Senate. I should like to hear the views of other gentlemen before I decide to bring forward a regular motion.

The Vice-Chancellor.—Have you any definite scheme to put forward as to how the grant should be utilised to promote high education?

The Hon'ble Pt. Madan Mohan Malaviya.—I have, and I can put it forward; but I should prefer that the matter should be considered and discussed with the experts engaged in the work of teaching before the scheme is submitted, which would be done if the Senate is consulted by the Government.

Rev. Mr. Holland.—I wish to endorse the Hon'ble Pandit's contention. I must confess to a sense of disappointed surprise when I first saw the statement of the manner in which it was proposed to dispose of the large grant made by the Government of India in aid of University education in these Provinces. While conscious of my inexperience in University matters, I could not feel that the best use was being made of the opportunity. I speak, of course, in ignorance of the use that is to be made of Darbhanga Castle. But so far as the statement before us is concerned, it would appear that our chief gain is to be a new Registrar's office. We were repeatedly told that the object of the Universities' Commission was to raise the whole standard of higher education and to help us towards the realisation of teaching Universities. I cannot see that we are one solid step nearer that goal. Our chief need is, I take it, of more teachers of the highest order. And, as far as I can see, after all the expenditure of discussion and money, the standard of teaching, the general level of the education given and the type of results obtained will be exactly what they were before. If the Senate be, as it were, the Committee through which Government works in regard to University education, I move that we respectfully suggest to the Government of the United Provinces that we should like to be consulted as to the best mode of using these large grants towards securing the ends we have in view.

Rev. Dr. Ewing.—Mr. Vice-Chancellor. I sympathise with the suggestion that the Senate might be asked to express its opinion as to how the special grants could best be applied. Further, if, as suggested by the Hon'ble Pt. Madan Mohan Malaviya, the Government of these Provinces could be induced to grant the sum authorised for the purchase of the Darbhanga Castle from their funds for education and so set free this part of the special grants to other needs of University education, I should think the solution a good one. I cannot, however, agree with what has been asserted by two or three gentlemen, who have just spoken, that the sum of Rs. 55,000 allotted to Darbhanga Castle and buildings there, has no relation to University education and is as good as thrown away. My only regret on seeing this allotment of funds was that the sum was so small. It has been intimated that these funds should have been given in such a way as to make a beginning of a Teaching University. On the contrary, it seems to me that the securing by the University of a centre of its own is a step which must precede the establishment of a Teaching Department by the University as such. Unless the buildings and equipment of some existing College be handed over to the University for its offices and its Teaching Department,—such College to be thereby dropped from the list of affiliated institutions,—I fail to see how we can have a Teaching University for post-graduate work until such time as the University shall have established a centre of its own. Madras, Bombay and Calcutta have University buildings. The Punjab is now erecting a very extensive building for the University's needs. Surely we should plan in the same wise way. Instead, therefore, of seeming to suggest that the Rs. 55,000 has been unwisely allotted, it would seem to me wiser to point out the inadequacy of the amount now set apart. Even this, however, is an excellent beginning and, instead of being money thrown away, is statesmanship with its eye on the future.

The Hon'ble Pt. Madan Mohan Malaviya.—I am glad to find that we are generally agreed that we should request the Government to give us an opportunity of expressing an opinion as to how the Government grant for University education should be spent. I beg, therefore, to move—

“That the Government of these Provinces be asked whether it is prepared to accept from this Senate proposals as to how the remaining sum of Rs. 50,000 out of the original grant of Rs. 1,33,000 can best be expended in the interest of University education, and further whether the Government of India would grant the Senate permission to express its views as to how the grants of Rs. 35,000 and Rs. 20,000, ear-marked for the purchase of the Darbhanga Castle and the construction of an office for the Registrar, can in the same interests be expended to the best advantage.”

On Shaikh Naushad Ali Khan seconding the motion and Messrs. Cholmondeley and Ward supporting it, the motion was carried.

Agenda Item No. IV.

Government Order No. 182/XV—394 A-2, dated the 8th May, 1905 (vide Appendix C), intimating payment by Government of a sum of Rs. 48,000 was recorded and the Registrar was instructed to convey the thanks of the Senate to Government.

Agenda Item No. V.

The Vice-Chancellor intimated that the question of establishment of a Central Law College,—proposals for which were called for by G. O. Nos. 174—XV—260-A, and 272—XV—260-A, dated the 4th May and 10th June, 1905, respectively (vide Appendix D),—was referred back by the Syndicate to the Sub-Committee originally appointed to consider the question and that he expected that the proposals asked for would soon go up to Government.

Mr. Sharp.—Would the formation of such a College entail the closure of Local Law classes?

The Vice-Chancellor.—No; that is not proposed.

Mr. Sharp.—But would not its establishment tend to cause their closure?

The Vice-Chancellor.—Yes, if it were a success. It would naturally draw the best men.

Mr. Sharp.—It is just this drawing away of the best men which will have a depressing effect upon places other than Allahabad, which may, under the proposed scheme, have to close their Law classes. The fact that these Law classes at present attract a certain number of post-graduates exercises a most beneficial influence in the social and educational life of such places.

This brought the meeting to a close, when the Vice-Chancellor informed the members of the Senate that he would be glad to receive proposals regarding inspection of Colleges. The matter, he said, must be taken in hand in November when the new regulations would, if sanctioned by Government, come into force.

Mr. Cholmondeley.—In view of what fell from the Vice-Chancellor just now, to the effect that the new regulations will not come into force, till they have received confirmation from Government, which is not to be anticipated before November, I think that the Senate should declare at this meeting, for the information of those concerned, that the course of studies prescribed in Chapter XIII, section 6, of the new regulations will not apply to students who are preparing for the Intermediate Examination of 1907.

It is clear that if these regulations do not come into force before November, they cannot be made to apply to students who for three months previously have been studying on other lines, and, if they cannot apply, the proper course will be to lose no time in saying so authoritatively, so as to avoid misapprehension.

(The Vice-Chancellor pointed out that there would be no difficulty so far as the Intermediate Examination was concerned.)

Mr. Cameron.—I think, Sir, that I understand your point with regard to the Intermediate—that no great hardship is involved in suddenly requiring the students to be examined in four subjects instead of in five. But do you take into account the fact that the remaining subjects will have to be increased in difficulty to keep up the standard of the examination? The Intermediate may not be a Degree examination, but it gives us the students for the Degree classes, and a too easy Intermediate for two years would give us three years of poor material there.

There remains also serious difficulty with the M.A. classes in the case of a sudden introduction of these new courses. The existing course has to be split between two examinations. It is a long course and in no two places probably is begun at the same point. It would be impossible to say in the middle of the session that so much of the course is to be included in one examination and so much in another without doing injustice to some students.

Rev. Dr. Ewing.—Mr. Vice-Chancellor, I observe that as the Regulations now stand they will come into force with retrospective effect from August 1st. You have, however, pointed out that it is your purpose to recommend that the date be November 1st. As the classes for 1906 and 1907 are already formed and will have been at work some time before November 1st, I would urge that the Chancellor in sanctioning the Regulations be asked to do so in such a way as to continue the present courses until July 1907. As you have ruled that a motion cannot be entertained now, I should like to give notice that I shall make some such proposal at the November meeting.

Vice-Chancellor.

1. Letter to the Government of Bombay, No. 89, dated the 25th January, 1905, and enclosures.

Dated Naini Tal, the 15th June, 1905.

Copy, with copy of enclosures, forwarded to the Registrar, Allahabad University, for information.

By order, etc.,

A. F. FREMANTLE,

Under Secretary to Government.

No. 89, dated the 28th January, 1905.

From—W. S. MARRIS, Esq., Deputy Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bombay, Educational Department.

I AM directed to forward, for the information of the Governor in Council, a copy of extracts of paragraphs 1 to 6 from a despatch* from the Secretary of State, and of its enclosure, offering certain suggestions for the avoidance of the difficulties which are encountered by scholars of Indian Universities who visit the United Kingdom for the purpose of obtaining technical education in manufacturing establishments.

2. The Secretary of State refers to the case of Mr. Kundanmal Almal Bhojwani, a graduate of the Bombay University, as illustrating the inconvenience which is ordinarily experienced in affording a scholar the necessary facilities for prosecuting his studies. I am to request that, with the permission of the Governor in Council, the Government of India may be informed of the circumstances in which Mr. Bhojwani was sent by the Bombay University as a scholar to London.

I am also to request that the attention of the University authorities may be invited to paragraphs 4 and 5 of the Secretary of State's despatch.

Extract, paragraphs 1 to 6, of despatch from Secretary of State No. 169-Public, dated the 2nd December, 1904.

I have to address Your Excellency's Government with regard to the visits of scholars of Indian Universities to this country for the purpose of obtaining technical education in manufacturing establishments.

2. My observations are suggested by the case of Mr. Kundanmal Almal Bhojwani, a graduate of the Bombay University, to whom a certificate of identity was granted this year as announced in your Home Secretary's letter, Public, No. 65, dated the 1st September last.

3. It was stated in the certificate that Mr. Bhojwani's object in coming to England was study, and on his arrival he explained in a letter, dated the 17th August last, of which a copy is enclosed, that he desired to study in particular the process of manufacture in one or two highly technical industries, such as glass and soap making, and to obtain admittance into the manufactories for that purpose.

4. Great difficulty was found in complying with his request for assistance in this matter, chiefly for the reason that he had no previous knowledge of any of the trades which he wished to study ; and I therefore desire Your Excellency's Government to consider whether it would not be well to intimate to the authorities of the Indian Universities the nature of the difficulties which their young scholars may encounter if they desire to obtain technical instruction of this nature in the United Kingdom.

5. It would seem to be desirable that, before the arrival of such scholars in this country, enquiry should be made of this office by the University authorities, through Your Excellency's Government, or in such manner as you may think suitable, whether the technical education contemplated is likely to be obtainable. In each case the qualifications of the scholar should be fully set forth, together with any information which may be procurable as to his previous career, and it should be definitely stated whether he is prepared to pay the usual premium to induce a private firm to afford him the training which he requires.

6. It should be borne in mind that a first condition of any intelligent native of India deriving profit from a course of study in Europe is that he should have previously received the requisite scientific training and should have been thoroughly grounded by practical work in the rudiments of the manufactures which he is to study, so far as this is possible in India. He would then, and then only, be able to acquire information of real value by further enquiry in Europe, which would amply repay a moderate annual expenditure on premiums.

ENCLOSURE.

MR. K. A. BHOJWANI to India Office,

34, BEDFORD PLACE,
RUSSELL SQUARE, LONDON, W. C.,
17th August, 1904.

SIR,

I beg to state that I came from India very recently for the purpose of studying some technical art. I am sent up here by the University of Bombay as a scholar, and referred to the India Office for assistance and guidance.

I desire to study one or two subjects (at my option) out of the following six :—

1. Glassware.
2. Soap making.
3. Tin works.
4. China work.
5. Scent making.
6. Match making.

I have seen some manufactories, but I find that it is not possible for me singly to get admittance into the manufactories unless I get strong letters of recommendation from you, and introduced by you to some influential people who are connected with trade, and who will be able to fix me somewhere.

It is unfortunate that none of the Polytechnics should teach any of the subjects selected by me.

The encouragement lately given both by the Home Government and Government of India to Technical Education to a very great extent induces young Indians to take to technical work.

My failure in getting entrance into some institution or manufactory will not only be a disappointment for me but it will have prohibitive effect and check the aspirations of many an Indian to shine in the technical arts. More than that, it will frustrate the policy of Government.

I pray that you will be pleased to do for me all you can. May I be permitted to suggest that D. W. Gibbs & Co., soap makers, Wapping, E., deal largely with His Majesty's War Department. There may be many other companies who may have special dealings with the Government, and I trust they could be easily made to admit me.

I beg, etc.,

BHOJWANI KUNDANMAL ALUMAL, B.A.,

UNIVERSITY SCHOLAR.

The Under Secretary of State for India.

No. 751, dated Bombay Castle, the 29th April, 1905.

From—J. SLADEN, Esq., I.C.S., Acting Secretary to the Government of Bombay, Educational Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department (Education).

WITH reference to paragraph 2 of Home Department letter No. 89, dated the 28th January last, I am directed to state that the University Registrar reports that Mr. Kundanmal Alumal Bhojwani was elected Sir Mangaldas Nathubhai Scholar under ordinary regulations (pages 503-04 of the Bombay University Calendar for 1904-05) and no reference was made to this Government before Mr. Kundanmal went to England. The Syndicate has resolved to take steps in future to give effect, as far as possible, to the suggestions in paragraphs 5 and 6 of the Secretary of State's despatch which accompanied the letter above referred to, and to keep this Government informed of the names of the scholars elected from time to time so that they may be accredited to the India Office with a view to their obtaining such guidance in their further studies as may be necessary.

SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT,

To

THE REGISTRAR,

Allahabad University.Dated Allahabad, 24th March, 1905.

SIR,

Department.

I am directed to inform you that the Government of India have set aside the following sums for the Allahabad University out of the first annual instalment of the five lakh grant for University education :—

	Rs.
(1) Grant to replenish the University balances ..	15,000
(2) Grant for travelling allowance of Fellows and Syndics	5,000
(3) Grant for initial charges of inspection of Colleges	8,000
(4) Grant for the purchase of Darbhanga Castle ..	35,000
(5) Grant for construction of an office for the Registrar	20,000
	<hr/> 83,000

The first three items will be paid to the account of the University after the 1st April. With regard to the last two you will be addressed shortly. The Local Government is considering which will be the more convenient course (a) to hand over the money to the University and to leave that body to make its own arrangements, or (b) to acquire the site and build the house in communication with the Vice-Chancellor, and then hand them over to the University. The Lieutenant-Governor would be glad of the Vice-Chancellor's opinion on this point.

2. With reference to the grants for travelling allowance and inspection, I am to forward copies of paragraphs 6 and 7 of a letter from the Government of India No. 195, dated 14th March, 1905, and to ask that the matters may be laid before the Senate.

I have the honour to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient servant,

C. H. B. KENDALL,

Under Secretary,

for Secretary to Government.

Copy of paragraphs 6 and 7 from a letter No. 195, dated the 14th March, 1905, from H. H. Risley, Esq., C.S.I., C.I.E., Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department, to the Secretary to Government, United Provinces.

* * * * *

6. The first necessity which arises from the Act of 1904 is the holding of frequent meetings of Fellows and Syndies. It is undesirable that Fellows residing in out-stations should be deterred from attending the meetings of the Senate by the expense involved in journeying to head-quarters and that the conduct of the affairs of the University should thus come to be centred in the body of Fellows who happen to reside in the University town. For these reasons the Government of India desire that members resident at a distance from Allahabad may be encouraged to attend at University meetings by the offer to reimburse them their travelling expenses. I am accordingly to suggest that by way of beginning a sum of Rs. 5,000 out of the allotment might suitably be placed at the disposal of the University for this purpose. The Government of India consider it advisable that the payment of travelling expenses should be regulated by definite rules (which might appropriately be in general conformity with those in the Civil Service Regulations) prescribing the conditions and scale on which travelling allowance will be granted, and I am to suggest that the Senate of the University should be asked to frame a set of such rules.

7. The next immediate necessity for which in the opinion of the Government of India provision should be made is in the inspection of Colleges. Your letter of the 14th January, 1905, does not contain any recommendation for expenditure on this account. In your letter No. 650, dated the 6th November, 1903, it was stated that in His Honour's opinion anything like a systematic inspection by the Syndicate was impracticable, and that on grounds of policy it would be inadvisable to entrust the duty to that body. The alternative of entertaining a staff of specially selected inspectors would, the Local Government estimated, not only involve considerable expenditure, but offered but a doubtful prospect of success, as the Lieutenant-Governor apprehended that it would rarely be possible to obtain for the posts gentlemen with the necessary knowledge and experience. The Government of India attach great importance to the systematic inspection of Colleges, and they would be glad if His Honour would, in consultation with the Senate, take the matter again into consideration with a view to devising some satisfactory arrangement. In order that there should be no delay on account of want of funds in the introduction of the scheme which may be adopted, the Government of India suggest that a sum of Rs. 8,000 might with advantage be specially reserved for the purpose of meeting the initial expenditure.

APPENDIX B—(contd.)

WITH reference to Item III of the Agenda for the Meeting of the Senate to be held on the 4th September, 1905, the Hon'ble the Vice-Chancellor will propose and the Hon'ble Pandit Sundar Lal will second the proposal, that the following rules, as drafted by the Syndicate at its meeting held on the 5th August, 1905, for the granting of travelling allowance to a Fellow or a Member of a Faculty attending meetings other than a Convocation or a meeting held solely for the purpose of recommending a Fellow for nomination to be a member of the Council of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of the United Provinces for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations, be sanctioned, and that the rules have retrospective effect from the 1st of January, 1905 :—

- (i) For all journeys performed by rail, one second class fare, each way, from his permanent place of residence to Allahabad, and back.
- (ii) For all journeys performed by road, eight annas per mile from his permanent place of residence to the nearest Railway Station, and back.

2. The Hon'ble Pundit stated that a scheme for the establishment of such a College was before the Government some time ago. This does not appear to be correct. It appears from the Resolution 152 (ii) of the Syndicate (page 259 of the Minutes for 1903) that a sub-committee was appointed to draft a letter to Government on the subject. No such letter has, however, been received.

3. I am now to ask for the detailed scheme prepared by the Syndicate, and I am to ask that it may specially be shown in what time the College is likely to be self-supporting.

Agenda Item No. XII.

Under Regulation 18 (iii) of Chapter I of the University Regulations the following proposals were considered :—

Proposal No. 1.

Rev. Mr. Westcott in moving that a sub-committee of the Senate be appointed to consider carefully the various courses of study before the Syndicate prescribed text-books in accordance with the changes made at the April Meeting, observed that the settlement of courses of study was one of the most important functions of the Senate, and few, if any, could contend that the changes made at the April Meeting had been adequately considered; nor had they been previously considered by the Faculties or Syndicate. He urged that other Universities, notably those of Madras, Bombay and Calcutta were giving far more time and thought to the subject than our own University. Among the subjects that seemed to call for special consideration were:—

(1) The proper time for the introduction of alternative Courses;

(2) the removal of Mathematics from the Intermediate Course as a compulsory subject;

(3) the position of students who had read Science and Mathematics up to the Intermediate standard only to find that they had not sufficient Mathematical ability to choose this as a subject for the B. A. Examination, and were at the same time unable to anticipate success if they chose the only alternative, a classical language, inasmuch as they had not studied this subject for some four years;

(4) the separation of 5th and 6th year students in consequence of the changes introduced into the M.A. course

In addition there was the question as to how the new Intermediate course with four subjects, instead of five, would be best arranged.

With reference to (2) he observed that the tables of Results of University examinations did not support the theory that Mathematics presented greater difficulties to students than any other subject in the Intermediate Examination. He was of opinion that a thorough discussion of these questions in a less formal manner than was possible at a meeting of the Senate, and in the light of the written opinions of those who had practical experience of teaching in affiliated Colleges, would do much to remove the probability of further changes in the immediate future.

In seconding Mr. Westcott's proposal Mr. Jesse said that there was undoubtedly a feeling that the present courses were not altogether satisfactory, and that, though he was aware that there would probably be objections raised to the present proposal, he felt that the appointing of a Committee ought to result in some consensus of opinion being reached, and, for that reason, he desired to support the mover.

The following appeared to him to be some of the principal objections likely to be raised, so he asked to be allowed to lay the same before the Senate, and to attempt to meet them. In the first place it had been suggested to him that such a Committee was not only unnecessary, but was unconstitutional. It was certainly not provided for in the Rules and Regulations of the University, but, on the other hand, there was nothing which forbade such a Committee being appointed, and, consequently, the question of unconstitutionality fell to the ground. As to whether it was expedient was a different matter, and one for which arguments could be produced on both sides. He was aware that it was open to any one to bring forward suggestions for changes in the courses under the ordinary methods of procedure; but he ventured to say that, at the present moment, so many alterations seemed desirable that he felt that it would be better that all proposals for change should be laid before a Committee, competent to deal with the points at issue, and to lay the results of their deliberations before the Senate as had been done in the case of the Rules and Regulations. It might be said that the courses had been already discussed in Committee. That was true but only in conjunction with the Regulations. He maintained that it was a grave error to have included the courses, but the deed had been done and there was no reason why a second Committee should not try and reduce the inequalities now existing.

A second objection which had been mooted to him privately was that a Committee would be overwhelmed with views and suggestions by members of the Senate, who had no true acquaintance with the working of the courses, and that the labours of the Board would be unnecessarily increased. It would be very likely that much that was impracticable would be brought forward, but this would be easily eliminated in Committee and it would be unlikely that the proposer would again bring forward such motions later on in the Senate.

A third objection was that the members of the courses Committee would to a large extent be the same as those for discussing the Rules and Regulations, and that it was unfair to ask them to give up the time that would be necessary for a full discussion of all the points at issue. It seemed to him however hardly likely that men of the standing of the Fellows likely to be selected would refuse their help on an occasion of this nature, though he quite agreed that it did demand a sacrifice of time and convenience.

Fourthly, objection had been raised that such an action as was proposed would tend to subject the University to a hide-bound and cast-iron set of courses which would militate against progress. To this it might be replied that Fellows would still have the same facilities for proposing changes if they wished, but, that, as a large number of improvements would be effected, it would be probable that the alterations in the courses would be less frequent than they had been in recent years.

As regards the benefits that would accrue from the appointment of a Committee, he ventured to think that, in the first place, it would remove once and for all many points at present in dispute, and would give the University a good foundation upon which to build in future. A general working-scheme having been devised it would be less likely that Fellows at a future date would bring forward unwise or unpractical proposals for changes. A Committee calling for the opinion of the various members of the Senate would afford an opportunity to each and every Fellow to express his views or wishes, and, when the suggestions of the Committee had been finally discussed and passed by the Senate at a General Meeting, he believed it would silence the remarks of complaint or disapproval which were unfortunately frequently being heard at the present time.

In conclusion the speaker acknowledged that, as one of the most recently joined members of the Senate, he had not the experience of many of those who were present, but as head of a small College he did realise the feeling of uncertainty that constant changes evoked in the minds of the students. He had no personal feeling in the matter, and was willing to abide by the decision of the Senate, but, speaking for himself, he would like to see some more or less final arrangement of courses arrived at as soon as possible, and for this reason he desired most strongly to support Mr. Westcott's proposal.

The Hon'ble Pt. Madan Mohan Malaviya was of opinion that instead of referring the matter to a new Sub-Committee it should be referred to the Faculties.

Mr. Ward expressed his agreement with Pt. Madan Mohan Malaviya's views.

Dr. Thibaut regretted that the Senate when excluding Mathematics from the compulsory subjects of the Intermediate course had not at the same time considered what should take the place of Mathematics. The change, he said, was far-reaching and would influence school education.

The Rev. Dr. Ewing spoke in favour of the Rev. Mr. Westcott's proposal, as the courses of study, he said, required reconsideration.

Rev. Mr. Crosthwaite spoke in favour of retaining Mathematics in the Intermediate course. The Mathematical course, he said, was already lightened and he was ready to further lighten it if necessary.

Mr. Jennings pointed out that the Rev. Mr. Westcott's proposal should be considered separately from the question of retaining Mathematics in the Intermediate Course.

Mr. Cameron.—It is not only the Intermediate Course that requires to be reconsidered. Had that been the case the question might have been left to be dealt with by the Boards of Studies and the Faculties in the ordinary way. It is the whole range of the Arts Courses that requires to be dealt with, for in spite of what has been said it must be maintained that none of the changes made have been properly discussed. In what has been said by Mr. Ward there has been a confusion between the B.Sc. Course and the B.A. Course with a Science subject. About the B.Sc. there is not, and has not been, any dispute. We are proud of it and gladly give to Mr. Ward the credit for it to which he is so justly entitled. But the change in the B.A. which has been brought about by the omission of the option of a Science subject is one which is very open to question and the statement that it was adopted in the Senate by a surprise vote without sufficient consideration is strictly accurate. Mr. Ward indeed is right to the extent that as far as he is personally concerned, the question is an old one dating back to 1895, when with Messrs. Cox and Murray he suggested it to the Syndicate. The suggestion was not entertained, and when the question again arose out of Mr. Ward's Memorial, Mr. Cox in a letter to the Convener of the Special Committee appointed, gave it as his opinion that a Science option should be retained for the B.A. There was therefore no unanimity amongst the Science and Mathematical experts upon this point. Yet less than a year afterwards the suggestion was made a motion on the Senate without notice being given and was passed.

There is another change in the B.A. which has never been properly discussed. Students are now required to take two language subjects. The question of making a classical language compulsory had not received the full consideration it requires.

With regard to the M.A. a new examination has been instituted, but about that I shall have to speak later on.

It is therefore the whole of our College Courses that require revision, and as this matter of course is the most important function of the University, there is sufficient need for a Special Committee to do the work. And it seems to me the large Committee is much to be preferred for those who have to be on it have all some special claim to initiate proposals. As members of the Boards of Studies they may be presumed to have special qualifications and special practical knowledge while the Principals of Colleges have a claim in so far as they are there to see to the interests of their institutions.

The ordinary Faculties could not do this work of revision so well. For instance, when the question of the B.A. with a Science subject came up it would be very important to have all the Science men present. Progress would not be nearly so satisfactory if the question were discussed by the several Faculties in separate meetings.

The Director of Public Instruction, United Provinces, (Mr. Lewis) was in favour of abiding by the revised regulations as they stood ; but consistently with those regulations, something still remained to be done. Those who were responsible for discontinuing compulsory Mathematics at the Intermediate Examination had explained that it was part of their scheme to raise the standard required in other subjects and particularly in the classical languages, and moreover that most of the old compulsory course in Mathematics should be studied in schools and included in the Matriculation Examination. These supplementary portions of the scheme would have to be finally and satisfactorily decided upon by March 1906, or else the new regulations would come into force in 1908 without the requisite two year's notice of the subsidiary changes which are to guard against a lowering of the standard at the Intermediate. It was not enough to admit that supplementary action is required ; we must see that it is taken. This may perhaps be left to the initiative of the Boards of Study and the Faculties. But there would be nothing objectionable in appointing a Sub-Committee for the purpose. The Sub-Committee proposed by Mr. Westcott, however, if we may judge from the speeches in support of it, was meant to upset the new regulations, and he should therefore vote against its appointment for an object such as this, which he altogether deprecated.

Messrs. Cox and Khaparde spoke against the proposal.

The Rev. Mr. Westcott, in replying, said that he could see nothing 'unconstitutional' in the proposal which he had made, a charge from which he had been cleared by observations made by Dr. Thibaut. Nor could he agree with those who preferred that changes should be made 'piece-meal.' As regards the objection that it was too late to consider now the changes made in the Intermediate Course, it seemed to him that there was still time to consider the desirability of these changes before the details had been arranged and fresh text-books prescribed.

The proposal was then put to the vote, and lost.

Proposal No. 2.

Proposal No. 2.—"That a Sub-Committee of the Senate be appointed at this meeting to collect the opinion of Fellows upon the courses of study and to forward to the Registrar, for the consideration of the respective Boards of Study and Faculties, an abstract of opinions thus received together with any recommendations as regards changes in the courses as may seem to them desirable; and that any recommendations on the subject which the Faculties may have to make be submitted to the Syndicate and brought before the Senate at its meeting in January next"—was withdrawn by the proposer, the Rev. Mr. Westcott.

The Meeting then adjourned to 7-30 A.M. of the next day (Tuesday, the 14th November, 1905).

Abstract of Application, dated the 15th September, 1905, from the Principal, Meerut College, for the Affiliation of the said College up to the B.Sc. Standard.

(a) The College is under a Board of Management, consisting of the Commissioner, Meerut Division, the Collector of Meerut, the Inspector of Schools, I Circle, as ex-officio members; and other members, each of whom has subscribed Rs. 1,000 to the College Funds.

The tenure of office of the above is such as to make due provision for the courses of instruction undertaken by the College.

- (3) Rs. 22,000 in land for building purposes.
- (4) Nanak Chand's School Fund, about Rs. 2,00,000.
- (5) Nanak Chand's Building Fund, about Rs. 30,000.

(h) The affiliation of the College to the B.Sc. Standard will not affect education or the discipline of other Colleges injuriously.

(i) The fees are in accordance with the Departmental requirements for Aided Institutions.

Reports on the inspection of Science Laboratories of the Meerut College.

(1) A fair amount of physical apparatus has been obtained for the Meerut College, but the accommodation is unsatisfactory and there is no gas supply. The Chemical Laboratory at present is far from being properly equipped.

The Principal Mr. Jesse is thoroughly determined to raise the status of this College, and he has already accomplished so much that we have no doubt he will succeed. A Professor of Science is to be brought out from England, and a gas installation is to be supplied. When these improvements have been effected, we recommend that the College be affiliated in Science up to the B.Sc. Degree, but this should not be done at present.

(2) The Principal of Meerut College informs me that he has now remedied the defects pointed out by Mr Hill and myself. A gas installation has been erected, the Chemical Laboratory equipped, and a Science Professor has been engaged in England. The Professor elect, Mr. Banister, is a B.Sc. of London, with high recommendations from the University College of North Wales. He is expected to arrive in India shortly.

Under these circumstances, I recommend that the Meerut College be granted affiliation in Science up to the B.Sc. Standard.

Proposal No. 3.

Rev. Mr. Westcott moved, and Rai Bahadur Lala Baij Nath seconded, the motion, that "no proposal affecting the courses of study shall be brought before the Senate until it has been fully considered by the Board or Boards of Study and Faculty or Faculties concerned."

The Director of Public Instruction, United Provinces (Mr. Lewis), considered that the proposal went too far. The Senate might well be left free to consider some general proposal affecting courses of studies, before handing it over to the Boards of Studies or Faculties to be worked out in detail. In fact they might be called upon by Government to discuss a proposal bearing upon a general improvement of the courses of study, if not some scientific reform. This might not admit of the delay of a preliminary reference to the Boards and Faculties.

After a discussion in which Messrs. Ward, Cox and Pandit and the Hon'ble Pandit Sunder Lal took part, the motion was put to the vote and lost.

Proposal No. 4.

Proposal No. 4,—“that notwithstanding anything contained in the Rules and Regulations recently sanctioned by Government the courses of study for 1906 and 1907 remain as announced in the University Prospectus”—was withdrawn.

Proposal No. 5.

Proposal No. 5—

- (a) “That for Regulations 2 and 3, Chapter XV, be substituted.

2. For admission to the Examination, a student shall be required to have completed a regular course of study in an affiliated College for not less than two academical years.”

- (b) That the following Regulation be inserted after 2 :—

3. The Senate on recommendation of the Syndicate may, at any time not less than two years after they have graduated in Arts or Science, grant permission to appear at this examination to (a) women not studying in an affiliated College, (b) Inspecting officers of the Education Department and Schoolmasters teaching within the territorial limits of the University ; but the Syndicate shall not undertake to hold an examination solely for private candidates.

Mr. Cameron.—I wish, Sir, to propose these two motions separately.

With regard to the first I would point out that it stands on a very different footing from the other proposals that are being made for the reconsideration of the Regulations prescribing the courses of study. Here no question is raised as to the M.A. Course itself. The point is merely whether an extra examination should be instituted—examinations are necessary evils and before their number is increased as it was by the institution of the previous Examination for the M. A. we ought to be very clear as to the purpose which is to be served and the urgency of the need that is supposed to exist. But that is just what is here wanting. Does anybody know why this examination was added ?

I have looked at the record of the meeting in April, and I find there no explanation at all of the proposal which was carried practically without discussion. There could not have been more than 16 fellows present at the time, and it was the tiresome end of a tiresome series of meetings in the hot air of an April evening in Allahabad. I am left therefore to my imagination to conjecture the possible reasons for the institution of this new examination.

It may have been to secure that the M. A. students should attend two sessions in College instead of only one as formerly. This is a good end, but it is equally secured by my proposal which secures it in the same way as is done in the other examinations by making it an express condition of admission to the one M.A. Examination.

It may also have been to bring the M.A. Examination into line with the other advanced examinations in Science and Law which are taken in yearly instalments. Now there may be subjects in which it is possible to mark off successive stages of attainment, but he would be a bold man who would undertake to say in regard to a course in Language and Literature what exactly a 5th year student ought to know in contradistinction to what a 6th year student ought to know.

But my chief reason for objecting to this new examination is a practical difficulty which struck me at once when I heard of the proposal. Hitherto, 5th and 6th year students have been taken together for the lecture hours but with two separate examinations to prepare for; this will no longer be possible. The prospects of the M.A. Classes do not therefore seem hopeful. They do not at present get the attention they ought to get, but under the new system matters will be worse. In Canning College, at any rate, we seem to be confronted with very serious alternatives. We must either cut down the lecture hours by one half, or we must be content to send up students for the M.A. only every other year. We do not care to meet either of these. In our College we have three Europeans teaching on the Arts side, and if this new Regulation is felt so severely by us, it must be a much more serious matter with weaker Colleges. I submit that those who support the institution of the new examination should show us how this practical difficulty is to be met. We may also claim from them some justification of their action in supporting the addition of one more to these necessary evils—the examinations of the University.

Lord Curzon in his latest review of his educational policy when referring to the dark ages before the Universities Bill spoke of Indian students as "being driven like sheep from lecture room to lecture room and from examination to examination." It is a striking instance of the irony of fate to find one of his reformed Senates rushing to make the paths narrower for the driven sheep and to add one more to their examinations.

Babu Ganga Prasad Varma seconded the proposal.

Messrs. Ward, Cox and Pandit, and the Hon'ble Pandit Sunder Lal, spoke against the proposal.

Mr. Cameron in reply spoke as follows—"I regret that I have not yet got what I asked for—an explanation of how the practical difficulty I raised is to be met or a justification of the institution of the new examination.

It is not of much use to talk of getting over the practical difficulty by asking College committees at once to increase their staffs. It would be neither very wise nor very prudent to put a pistol to their heads in this way and demand 'your money or your life.' For it is a life that is here at stake, the life of the M.A. Classes."

The first part of the proposal having been lost on being put to the vote, the second part was withdrawn.

Proposal No. 6.

Proposal No. 6, by the Rev. Dr. Ewing, that in Chapter XIII, section 6, sub-division (iv), under A, the word "and" be substituted for "or," having been withdrawn, the amendment to the proposal (vide Appendix A) dropped.

Proposal No. 7.

Proposal No. 7,—“that the Syndicate be asked to consider what additional means, if any, should be adopted to remove such inequalities in University Examinations as arise out of the selection of optional subjects"—was, in the absence of the proposer—the Rev. Mr. Crosthwaite—brought forward by the Rev. Mr. Westcott, who pointed out that it was easier to secure marks in some subjects than in others. Candidates taking easy subjects, therefore, secured more marks than those taking difficult ones. Consequently the University prizes did not always go to the best students, but to the students who managed to score the highest marks.

Dr. S. C. Banerji seconded the proposal.

The Hon'ble Pandit Sunder Lal and Mr. Ward spoke against the proposal.

The proposal was then withdrawn.

Proposal No. 8.

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya proposed that the following be added as Regulation 9 in Chapter XXIII of the Regulations of the University :—

“ Meetings of the Senate shall be open to Press reporters, unless in any special case the Vice-Chancellor otherwise directs.”

In making the above proposal the Hon'ble Pandit pointed out that Press reporters were admitted to the Senate meetings of other Indian Universities as well as to the meetings of all important bodies, such as the meetings of the Legislative Councils. He further said that by admitting Press reporters the University would have the advantage of knowing the public opinion on measures proposed to be adopted, and thereby be better able to come to a decision on such matters.

Dr. S. C. Banerji.—I second the motion. I have heard the Allahabad University Senate described as a parda-nishin

Senate! There is no reason why a public body transacting public business should do it in camera, especially when the questions which we deal with are all educational and concern the people of the country in a vital manner. It has been said that the presence of Press reporters might induce a feeling of constraint and prevent some of us from speaking out. But in my opinion it is not desirable that we should speak here without weighing our words. On the contrary, if we ever feel inclined to say anything that we do not wish to appear in the public prints, would it not be much better to leave it unsaid?

Mr. Cox and Mr. Pandit opposed the motion.

Babu Ganga Prasad Varma.—I rise to support the proposal of the Hon'ble Mr. Malaviya. In reply to the remarks of Mr. Cox I would say that if his dictum were to be acted upon all the meetings of the Legislative Council, Municipalities and other public bodies should have to be closed till such time that reporters could be had in these Provinces who possessed qualifications up to a fixed standard. The members assemble, not with a view to enter into animated discussions, but to transact business, and I think the presence of reporters here will make the Senators careful as to the language they use. Even if good shorthand reporters cannot be had I would support the admission of newspaper editors to the Senate Meetings to enable them to hear what is passing in the Senate Hall and get material to form a correct opinion as to the way University affairs are managed.

The Director of Public Instruction, United Provinces (Mr. Lewis), hoped that the mover in his reply would lay before the Senate the evidence on which he based his statement that Press reporters were admitted to the meetings of the Senate in all other Indian Universities. If the evidence was satisfactory it would furnish an argument of some strength in favour of adopting the same practice here. But even without the admission of Press reporters it could not be maintained that the meetings of our Senate were held in secret conclave. They were attended by members who represented the general public in all its important sections most completely ; and it was open to any Fellow to recount in the press or elsewhere the proceedings of the Senate, and to comment upon them at his pleasure. The accounts published by Press reporters could not be accepted as necessarily accurate.

Mr. Khaparde spoke in favour of the motion.

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya in replying said that his information as to Press reporters being admitted by other Indian Universities was derived from newspapers from the Provinces concerned.

The proposal was then put to the vote and carried ; and it was further resolved that the proposed regulation form part of Regulation 2 of Chapter XXIII of the University Regulations.

Proposal No. 9.

Proposal No. 9—"that notwithstanding anything contained in the revised regulations, all the examinations in 1906 and 1907 shall be conducted on the basis of the courses laid down in the published Prospectus for 1906 and 1907"—was considered along with the memorial submitted by certain Fellows of the Universities to His Honour the Chancellor, and the Chancellor's remarks thereon (vide Appendix B).

The Vice-Chancellor observed that he had throughout stated and wished to state as emphatically as he could that it was not in contemplation, so far as he was concerned, to make any examination easier than it was previous to the revised regulations being sanctioned. He further pointed out that though he was not in sympathy with the proposal some proposal of the kind now moved was necessary or the University would not be able to resist claims put forward by candidates, unsuccessful under the old regulations, to be passed if the results obtained satisfied the letter of the new regulations.

Messrs. Ward and Jesse and the Rev. Mr. Westcott spoke in favour of, and Mr. Cox against, the proposal.

The proposal was then put to the vote and carried.

Vice-Chancellor.

Registrar.

APPENDIX B.

No. 1 C. OF 1905.

FROM

S. H. BUTLER, Esq., C.I.E.,

Secretary to Government,

United Provinces,

TO

THE HON'BLE MR. JUSTICE KNOX,

Vice-Chancellor,

Allahabad University.

Dated Lucknow, 2nd November, 1905.

SIR,

I AM directed to forward in original (return requested) memorial signed by several heads of Colleges and other Fellows of the University, with a note recorded thereon by His Honour the Chancellor, and to say that if you and the Senate interpret Regulation 13, Chapter XI, of the Revised Regulations in the same way as the Chancellor, the question raised may be disposed of as suggested.

I have the honour to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient servant,

S. H. BUTLER,

Secy. to Govt., United Provinces.

To

THE HON'BLE

SIR JAMES JOHN DIGGES LATOUCHE, K.C.S.I.,

Chancellor of the University of Allahabad.

SIR,

WE, the undersigned Fellows of the University of Allahabad, beg respectfully to petition Your Honour, that you may graciously be pleased to stay the action of the Vice-Chancellor of the University in calling the meetings of the Provisional Boards of Studies and of the Provisional Faculties of Arts, Science, and Law, on the 11th November, 1905.

2. The object of these meetings is officially declared to be "to bring the Courses of Study for 1906 and 1907 into conformity with the Revised Regulations."

3. The Courses of Study for the Allahabad University Examinations all represent a Course of Study for two consecutive years. These Courses for the examinations of 1906 were issued in the University Prospectus of April, 1904; they have now been studied for nearly a year and a half, and the examination papers have been drawn up ready for moderating. A great part of this work would be reduced to nullity if the Vice-Chancellor's orders were executed. Moreover, as regards the B.A. Examination, a number of students would be debarred from the examination for the degree, inasmuch as the Courses they have been studying on the faith of the University Prospectus do not satisfy the new conditions. For example, students who have taken History and Political Economy, History and Philosophy, Chemistry and Physics, or either, as parts of their Course, are by the new Regulations ineligible as candidates for the B.A. degree.

4. As regards the Examinations for 1907, the University Prospectus for these was issued in April, 1905, and according to this the College classes have been constituted and the students are now reading their selected Courses of Study. A sudden and unforeseen change to the Courses of Study prescribed by the new Regulations would be seriously detrimental both to the work and discipline of every affiliated College. The M.A. and LL. B. classes, for instance, would have either to re-commence their work or disappear altogether. The epithet "unforeseen" has been used advisedly. There have been many changes in the Courses of Study during the comparatively brief history of the Allahabad University; but the biennial nature as well as the consecutive connection of such Courses has never before escaped recognition; and ample notice has always been given, by setting the examinations affected by such changes sufficiently far into the future to allow time for the requisite preparation. For instance, the present Course of Study for the B.A. Examination of 1907 was passed in 1899.

5. Our object in presenting this petition to Your Honour is that the Senate may be allowed an opportunity, in its meeting of the 13th November, of deciding that the new Regulations coming into force on the 1st of November apply only to new Courses of Study, and not to those already prescribed by the University.

We, your petitioners, respectfully subscribe ourselves

Remarks by His Honour the Chancellor.

The accompanying memorial was presented to me by Mr. Pirie, Principal of the Canning College, and Mr. Ward, Professor in that College.

It is signed by Principals of many Colleges affiliated to the University and has other influential signatures. The point at issue is whether the new Regulations affect the Courses of Study in the year 1906-07.

In my opinion the question must be decided in accordance with para. 13, Chapter XI. of the Revised Regulations, which provides that at least two years' notice shall be given before the Course of Studies and the text-books are altered.

The Board of Studies which has been summoned to meet on 11th November, 1905, will, it is presumed, prepare Courses of Study in accordance with the Revised Regulations; but these Courses of Study cannot come into force till at least two years after they have been notified.

The present application would evidently have been unnecessary if in Rule 13, Chapter XI, it had been clearly stated that nothing in these Regulations should affect the Courses already prescribed for the year 1906-07. But in my opinion this was the meaning and intention of Rule 13, Chapter XI.

2nd November, 1905.

J. D. LA TOUCHE,

Chancellor.

CONVOCATION, NOVEMBER 14th, 1905.

The Hon'ble the Vice-Chancellor having declared Convocation open, the Arts, Science and Law Graduates of the year 1905 were admitted to their respective Degrees in the usual manner.

The Hon'ble the Vice-Chancellor then addressed Convocation.—

GENTLEMEN OF THE SENATE.—Throughout the year now closing and indeed for some years past Universities have been much in evidence. What courses should be taught in them and what subjects should be excluded has been the property of the man in the street not only in this country but also in the Mother Country. Newspapers and magazines have thrown their pages open freely. Recently a writer of some note undertook to sketch out for the readers of the 'Nineteenth Century' the buildings, the personnel and the course of studies of an ideal University. It contains much that is of interest and of profit. Speaking of the Vice-Chancellor the writer says—

"Buildings there must be, and in particular the Vice-Chancellor should live 'over the shop.' He should not "play the fine gentleman, or live on £10 a week at the club "and pocket the balance of his income. Vice-Chancellor's "lodge should be a feature from the outset of every new "University." Well, Gentlemen of the Senate, so far as this University is concerned, I am afraid the Vice-Chancellor's lodge and the Vice-Chancellor's income are still dreams and dreams in the land of far away. The only part of the picture that has at all been very real during the past year is the idea that the Vice-Chancellor should live 'over the shop.' As you all know, we have been living, Vice-Chancellor and Senate, in an atmosphere thick with regulations. This and the other Universities have been roused from what can hardly be called the traditions of the past, so short lived has that past proved, to face a new and extended future. Somewhat unwilling perhaps we are to-day standing face to face with new duties and with new responsibilities, the importance of which can hardly be exaggerated. First, the sphere within which we are called upon to exercise direct influence has been, as you know, largely extended. We welcome and welcome cordially to-day as part and parcel of ourselves Fellows who remind us by their presence and by their eloquence that this University is now brought into closer touch with the control and with the direction of the higher education of students from the Central Provinces and from the Berars on the one side, to Rajputana and Central India on the other.

In the past this University, like other Indian Universities, opened its doors to students who resided or had studied in nearly all the limits already named as well as to residents and scholars in the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, but the Statutes by which we are now ruled have divided the land with this result that all who are pursuing their studies or who are aiming at such pursuit within the limits just mentioned have now to subscribe their allegiance to this University and to this University alone. The new relationship into which we are brought has its disadvantages ; it has also its advantages. While we hope the day may soon come when Nagpur and Ajmer will have their own University centres, we hope that this our temporary union will be, as the Roman philosopher would say, perfect in the true sense of the word, and that when the day comes for parting we shall separate with hearts and minds strengthened by the intimate relationships in which we find ourselves to-day. With him we shall, I hope to be able to say that this perfecta societas has been the greatest blessing of this present stage of our University life.

Gentlemen of the Senate, words cannot adequately express my regret that the Chancellor is not able to preside here to-day. As many of you know, he intended to preside and to undertake the duty of addressing you. It was only at the last moment that he was prevented by State duties, which could not otherwise be arranged for, from carrying out his intention. The never-failing interest he has shown and the strong vein of practical shrewdness which runs through all his addresses makes his absence the more keenly felt at this critical period. In the letter in which he expressed his deep regret for his unavoidable absence he also expressed his conviction that short and sudden though the summons was to fill his place, the Vice-Chancellor would not be at a loss for a subject, for he would have, in the new regulations, ample material for an address, and material with which he would be familiar and which could not fail to interest.

You will sympathise with me when I observe that the position in which I find myself reminds me of the position in which that prince of Roman humorists beheld his friend when, himself safe, or as he would describe it, "Vacuus Dionæo sub antro," he girded his friend on with the pregnant words

"Periculosæ plenum opus aleæ
Tractas et incedis per ignes
Suppositos cineri doloso"

Bearing this in mind I prefer to content myself with announcing as an historic fact the fact that the new regulations have received the sanction of the Government.

New garments, however admirable in other respects, are at first somewhat uncomfortable, and we are often tempted to say with the stripling warrior of old "I cannot go with these, for I have not proved them." But then we are not all of us Davids and we cannot all "sling stones at an hair breadth and not miss."

Gentlemen of the Senate, five years ago I ventured to point out two directions in which this University needed to make and could make an advance. I little thought that before I laid down my office as Vice-Chancellor I should be able to congratulate you upon such distinct progress, I use the word advisedly, in both directions.

In one direction the advance wished for may be said to have been reached. Hostels have sprung up and are daily springing up, until now it is difficult and soon it will be impossible to find a College to which suitable and efficient Hostels are not attached. The new University Act makes the existence of proper Hostels a necessary appurtenance without which no new College can hope to be affiliated to this University. To the Mahomedan Anglo-Oriental College, which led the way so efficiently and still continues to take the lead, to the Oxford and Cambridge Hostel, which has set so high a standard of what a Hostel should be, both in the way of building and directing staff, the University is much indebted. To judge from the massive and imposing buildings of the Hindu Hostel which are now fast approaching completion it appears that the managers intend that their Hostel shall be equally well equipped. The standard thus established we may well feel confident that other Colleges will not rest content with inferior Hostels, and if this confidence is well founded the University of Allahabad need no longer feel the anxiety which has hitherto been such a real one that the physical comfort and moral well-being of their students were in such real peril.

During the year now past the Government of India have made a grant of Rs. 1,33,000 for the purposes of University education, and I feel confident that with renewed grants of this kind the day is at hand when we shall step from the lower plane of a mere examining University to the higher status of a teaching University. You will remember that in the first University speech made within these walls, Sir A. Lyall felt himself compelled to admit the superior influence of a University which presides over the teaching of Colleges grouped round it and which gives a high tone and training to the whole body of students and to apologise as it were for the decision that this University was to be an institution prescribing only the courses of study and examining for degrees. He regretted but had to accept the conclusion that the higher position would be premature and unsuited to the then organic stage of high education. The difficulties which prevent this step being taken at once are still very real, but the temper of the Senate shows that many, if not most, Fellows are not content with the present stage and that chairs will soon be created, it may be at the various leading centres. Even if they are not now filled by Professors teaching in the present Colleges it is my earnest hope that they will be filled by men who have attained an undisputed pre-eminence in different branches of learning and who will attract to their lectures post-graduate students from every College, men who will be students not only of a particular College but also of the University. It will be a day of regret if ever it comes when the link of affection and loyalty which binds men to a particular College is weakened. The man who has never felt the warm impulses of loyalty to the College will be very slow in learning loyalty to the University especially if its centres be scattered centres; and loyalty, Gentlemen of the Senate, is not the least important part of the education which every University should impart. Unless education infuses a spirit of loving loyalty into its students, such education is grievously incomplete, and very contrary to traditions which have been and still are amongst the best traditions of Indian education.

I fully endorse the words of a present Fellow of this University who points out that among the merits of the 'old system of teaching was the inculcation of habit and of reverence on the part of the pupil and of love and strong interest in the welfare of the pupil on the part of the teacher, a system which, as he goes on to point out, was, though poor in average, yet more successful in giving the world a greater number of devoted or in other words, loyal scholars than the present system.

Proper Hostels will undoubtedly help to remove this reproach. To use Cardinal Newman's words they will give birth to a living teaching, which in course of time will take the place of a self-perpetuating tradition or a genius which haunts the home where it has been born and which imbues and forms more or less and one by one every individual who is successively brought under its shadow.

Another important departure to which we are now committed is the recognition of teaching. It does seem an anomaly in the present day when the value of systematised teaching is daily more and more recognised that there should be the patents of degrees granted to Lawyers, Doctors, Scientists and denied to the art and science by which the future Lawyer, Doctor and Scientist are trained. Whatever may be the case elsewhere the Training College which exists in these Provinces has reached a status and won a position for itself no whit inferior to the position and status reached by many a College which justly values and is proud of its affiliation to the University in other branches of learning. The Ars Docendi is quite as liberal an art as any other of the Artes Humanæ, and if we are really in earnest in the elevation of our secondary schools to a higher level it is not wise to refuse to those who have learnt how to teach in them the patent of a degree when they show themselves duly qualified. In the old days when the school furniture was a rod and a Dunce's cap and when teaching was the refuge of those who had failed in all other departments of life such a refusal was justified, but those days are gone never to return, and there appears no justification for refusing the B.A. his further degree of L.T. when he shows himself worthy of it than for refusing him the further degree of LL.B.

Gentlemen of the Senate, fourteen years ago the Chancellor who presided at Convocation warned us in very faithful words of the danger in which we then stood of holding that English education is best and that compulsory education of a high class in native classic languages must necessarily be otherwise than good. He hoped that this University would endeavour to promote the scientific study of the great classical languages of India as languages. Unfortunately classical languages in general were then on their trial and since then have been so persistently attacked that they have had a very hard fight to maintain their position in their old strongholds Oxford and Cambridge. This was the natural result of the fact that in the present stage there were many who advocated the claims of these languages to be the only liberal education in an exaggerated or one-sided manner. Even here the influences of the struggle that has been raging in the Mother Country have been felt. Good has resulted, for I feel I may unhesitatingly claim for this University that on the scientific side our University degrees command widespread respect. Would that I could say the same as confidently of the other side. And yet if we are to be a University to be one-sided is fatal. Let me commend to you words recently used by Sir R. Jebb, who, while in no way depreciating the value of scientific "studies, maintains that it remains as true as ever that "literary studies form an indispensable element of a really "liberal education. And the educational value of good "literature is all the greater in our day because the progress "of knowledge more and more enforces early specialisation. "Good literature tends to preserve the breadth and variety of "intellectual interests. It also tends to cultivate the sym- "pathies, it exerts a humanising influence by the clear and "beautiful expression of noble thoughts and sentiments, by "the contemplation of great actions and great characters, "by following the varied development of human life, not "only as an evolution governed by certain laws, but also as "a drama full of interests which intimately concern us. More- "over, as has well been said, if literature be viewed as one of "the fine arts, it is found to be the most altruistic of them "all, since it can educate a sensibility for other forms of "beauty besides its own. The genius of a Ruskin can "quicken our feeling for masterpieces of architecture, "sculpture, and painting. Even a very limited study of "literature, if it be only of the right quality, may provide "permanent springs of refreshment for those whose principal "studies and occupations are other than literary."

If I could feel, Gentlemen of the Senate, that the found- ations were laid for degrees of this University commanding in all branches the respect that they now claim on the science side I should feel that a great step forward had been made. While we can say of science "this have we done," let not critics say "the other have you left undone."

Graduates, I have already charged you in the brief but eloquent words which this University prescribes that I should utter when conferring on you your degrees. Be your past what it may, it is for you to look to it that the future is worthy of what men expect from a cultured man.

I feel the fear that by adding to those words I may diminish their force, still let me remind you that to carry out this charge you need something beyond mere head knowledge. Let me recall to the Indian students words with which doubtless many of them are familiar, words which reveal to you one of the secret springs of the force which will enable you to keep faithfully the charge of this University

MATHEMATICS.

MATRICULATION.

There will be two papers in Mathematics, one paper in Arithmetic and Algebra, and a second paper in Geometry.

The courses shall be as follows :—

(1) Arithmetic.—The whole of Arithmetic. (The uses of Algebraical symbols and processes shall be permitted.)

(2) Algebra.—The four simple rules, Fractions, Greatest Common Measure, Least Common Multiple, Factors, Proportion, Simple Equations of one or more unknown quantities with easy problems, Square Root, simple questions on Fractional and Negative Indices, Quadratic Equations of one unknown quantity with easy problems. Easy graphs.

(Candidates will be provided with squared paper.)

(3) Geometry.—The course includes both Practical and Theoretical Geometry, and every candidate shall be expected to answer questions in both branches of the subject.

The questions on Practical Geometry shall be set on the constructions contained in the annexed Schedule A, together with easy extensions of them. All figures should be drawn accurately, for which purpose every candidate should provide himself with a graduated scale, a pair of set squares, a protractor, compass and a hard pencil.

The questions on Theoretical Geometry shall consist of Theorems contained in the annexed Schedule B, together with easy extensions and deductions with numerical illustrations. Any proof of a proposition shall be accepted which appears to the examiners to form part of a systematic treatment of the subject; the order in which the theorems are stated in Schedule B is not imposed as the sequence of their treatment. In the proof of the theorems hypothetical constructions shall be permitted.

SCHEDULE A.

Bisections of angles and of straight lines.

Construction of perpendiculars to straight lines.

Construction of an angle equal to a given angle.

Construction of parallels to a given straight line.

Simple cases of the construction from sufficient data of triangles and quadrilaterals.

Division of straight lines into a given number of equal parts or into parts in any given proportions.

Construction of a triangle equal in area to a given polygon.

Construction of tangents to a circle and of common tangents to two circles.

Simple cases of the construction of circles from sufficient data.

Construction of a fourth proportional to three given straight lines and a mean proportional to two given straight lines.

Construction of regular figures of 3, 4, 6 or 8 sides in or about a given circle.

Construction of a square equal in area to a given polygon.

SCHEDULE B.

ANGLES AT A POINT.

If a straight line stands on another straight line, the sum of the two angles so formed is equal to two right angles; and the converse.

If two straight lines intersect, the vertically opposite angles are equal.

PARALLEL STRAIGHT LINES.

When a straight line cuts two other straight lines, if

- (i) a pair of alternate angles are equal, or
 - (ii) a pair of corresponding angles are equal, or
 - (iii) a pair of interior angles on the same side of the cutting line are together equal to two right angles,
- then the two straight lines are parallel; and the converse.

Straight lines which are parallel to the same straight line are parallel to one another.

TRIANGLES AND RECTILINEAR FIGURES.

The sum of the angles of a triangle is equal to two right angles.

If the sides of a convex polygon are produced in order, the sum of the angles so formed is equal to four right angles.

If two triangles have two sides of the one equal to two sides of the other, each to each, and also the angles contained by these sides equal, the triangles are congruent.

If two triangles have two angles of the one equal to two angles of the other, each to each, and also one side of the one equal to the corresponding side of the other, the triangles are congruent.

If two sides of a triangle are equal, the angles opposite to these sides are equal; and the converse.

If two triangles have the three sides of the one equal to the three sides of the other, each to each the triangles are congruent.

If two right-angled triangles have their hypotenuses equal, and one side of the one equal to one side of the other, the triangles are congruent.

If two sides of a triangle are unequal, the greater side has the greater angle opposite to it; and the converse.

Of all the straight lines that can be drawn to a given straight line from a given point outside it, the perpendicular is the shortest.

The opposite sides and angles of a parallelogram are equal, each diagonal bisects the parallelogram and the diagonals bisect one another.

If there are three or more parallel straight lines and the intercepts made by them on any straight line that cuts them are equal, then the corresponding intercepts on any other straight line that cuts them are also equal.

AREAS.

Parallelograms on the same or equal bases and of the same altitude are equal in area.

Triangles on the same or equal bases and of the same altitude are equal in area.

Equal triangles on the same or equal bases are of the same altitude.

Illustrations and explanations of the geometrical theorems corresponding to the following Algebraical identities :—

$$k(a + b + c + \dots) = ka + kb + kc + \dots$$

$$(a + b)^2 = a^2 + 2ab + b^2$$

$$(a - b)^2 = a^2 - 2ab + b^2$$

$$a^2 - b^2 = (a + b)(a - b)$$

The square on a side of a triangle is greater than, equal to, or less than, the sum of the squares on the other two sides, according as the angle contained by those sides is obtuse, right, or acute. The difference in the case of inequality is twice the rectangle contained by one of the two sides and the projection on it of the other.

LOCUS.

The locus of a point which is equidistant from two fixed points is the perpendicular bisector of the straight line joining the two fixed points.

The locus of a point which is equidistant from two intersecting straight lines consists of the pair of straight lines which bisect the angles between the two given lines.

THE CIRCLE.

A straight line drawn from the centre of a circle to bisect a chord which is not the diameter is at right angles to the chord; conversely the perpendicular to a chord from the centre bisects the chord.

There is one circle, and one only, which passes through three given points not in a straight line.

In equal circles (or in the same circle) (i) if two arcs subtend equal angles at the centres, they are equal; (ii) conversely, if two arcs are equal, they subtend equal angles at the centres.

In equal circles (or in the same circle) (i) if two chords are equal, they cut off equal arcs; (ii) conversely, if two arcs are equal the chords of the arcs are equal.

Equal chords in a circle are equidistant from the centre; and the converse.

The tangents at any point of a circle and the radius through the point are perpendicular to one another.

If two circles touch, the point of contact lies on the straight line through the centres.

The angle which an arc of a circle subtends at the centre is double that which it subtends at any point on the remaining part of the circumference.

Angles in the same segment of a circle are equal; and, if the line joining two points subtends equal angles at two other points on the same side of it, the four points lie on a circle.

The angle in a semi-circle is a right angle, the angle in a segment greater than a semi-circle is less than a right angle, and the angle in a segment less than a semi-circle is greater than a right angle.

The opposite angles of any quadrilateral inscribed in a circle are supplementary; and the converse.

If a straight line touch a circle, and from the point of contact a chord be drawn, the angles which this chord makes with the tangent are equal to the angles in the alternate segments.

If two chords of a circle intersect either inside or outside the circle, the rectangle contained by the parts of the one is equal to the rectangle contained by the parts of the other.

PROPORTION : SIMILAR TRIANGLES.

If a straight line is drawn parallel to one side of a triangle, the other two sides are divided proportionally; and the converse.

If two triangles are equiangular, their corresponding sides are proportional; and the converse.

If two triangles have one angle of the one equal to one angle of the other and the sides about these equal angles proportional, the triangles are similar.

The internal bisector of an angle of a triangle divides the opposite sides internally in the ratio of the sides containing the angle, and likewise the external bisector externally.

The ratio of the areas of similar triangles is equal to the ratio of the squares on corresponding sides.

The following books are suggested for Algebra—

TUCKER: Examples in Algebra.

BAKER and BOURNE: Elementary Algebra, Part I.

In Geometry—

HALL and STEVENS: A School Geometry, Parts I—V is prescribed.

INTERMEDIATE.

There will be two papers in Mathematics, one paper in Algebra and Trigonometry, and a second paper in the Geometry of Conics and Solids, and the elements of Co-ordinate Geometry.

APPENDIX B.

The Board considered the relative merits of the two text-books, viz., Morris' Geometrical Drawing at present in use and Harrison's Practical Plane and Solid Geometry sent up with a recommendation from the Text-book Committee, and are of opinion that while Harrison's book is more comprehensive and more in keeping with the new method of teaching Geometry, Morris' book edited by Jesse is more practical and better suited to the present requirements of Indian students. They therefore recommend that no change be made.

Haythornthwaite, Rao Bahadur Shyam Sunder Lal, C.I.E., and Maulvi Mehdi Ali Khan, nominated as Fellows of the University by Government Notification No. 745-XV—570A, dated the 24th November, 1905, was confirmed under regulation 4, Chapter III, of the University regulations.)

Agenda Item No. II.

The Meeting considered a letter, dated the 29th October, 1905, from the Hon'ble Munshi Madho Lal of Benares, for incorporating the names of Sadho Lal Scholars in the Allahabad University Calendar, granting them diplomas or certificates at University Convocations (vide Appendix A).

It was resolved that the Senate regrets its inability to accede to the request of the Hon'ble Munshi Madho Lal.

Agenda Item No. III.

Under section 19 of the Universities Act of 1904, applications for permission to appear at the University Examinations of 1906 were granted (vide Appendix B).

Agenda Item No. IV.

Under regulation 18, Clause (iii) of Chapter I of the University regulations, the following proposals were considered :—

Proposal No. 1.

Pandit Ganga Nath Jha.—I beg to propose—

That the degree of “ Doctor of Literature ” be instituted by adding the following sections after Chapter XV of the regulations :—

Doctor of Literature.

1. Any Master of Arts of the University of Allahabad may be admitted to the Examination of the degree of Doctor of Literature at least one year after passing his M.A.

2. The Examination will be partly by means of printed papers and partly vivâ voce based upon an independent thesis forwarded by the candidate at least one month before the date fixed for the Examination.

3. The subject of Examination will be one of the following :—

(a) Indian Philosophy with Western Philosophy.

(b) Ancient Indian History and Archæology.

In putting forward the motion before you I beg to point out that it is practically the same motion that I had brought forward last year. The only change is in the name of the degree, which I have made more comprehensive, in order to enable the inclusion of other subjects at some future time. The regulations I have put forward are by no means complete. I have put them forward simply for the purpose of making the proposal admissible, as I gather that the motion could not be allowed except in some such definite form. The only serious objection I have heard expressed is with regard to the impossibility of having proper teachers ; but I am quite confident that at least half a dozen Colleges have staffs that are quite capable of dealing with the (a) portion of the subject ; and as regards the (b) portion also, even though we may not have competent teachers now, I am quite sure proper teachers can be found whenever a candidate does turn up.

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya seconded the proposal.

On a motion by Rai Bahadur G. N. Chakravarti, seconded by Mr. Pirie, it was resolved that Pandit Ganga Nath Jha's proposal be referred to the Faculty of Arts.

Proposal No. 2.

Pandit Ganga Nath Jha.—I beg to propose—

That in view of the recent change in the Courses for the Intermediate Examination, it is desirable that there should be a bifurcatory adjustment between the Courses in the Classical Languages and Mathematics, so that one who takes up the full Course of the one will take only the "first" Course of the other, and vice versa.

What I mean by this is that there should be two Courses prescribed for Classical Languages and for Mathematics, a simple or ordinary one, and a stiffened one. And it be so regulated that the candidate who takes up the full Course of Classics will have to take either only the simple Course of Mathematics, or Logic; while he who takes the simple Course of the former will have to take the full Course of Mathematics.

When the Faculty of Arts met in December last, they proceeded to consider the matter of adjusting the Intermediate Courses to the new regulations; and it was admitted by nearly all present that the making alternative of "Mathematics" in the A Course had considerably lightened it; and also that the consequent stiffening could come in rightly only in regard to the Classical Languages.

At this stage, however, they were met by a serious difficulty, pointed out, I suppose, by Mr. Westcott. It had been taken for granted by many who voted for the altered regulation that the "Mathematics" with which Logic was alternated was only the "simple" or "ordinary" Course; and this not without reason, as it was naturally thought that the "Mathematics" put on the "A" side could only mean that part of it which was being studied by the present "A" Course students. But at the Faculty Meeting we were told that it was not the simple but the double Mathematics that had been alternated with Logic. Under these circumstances it was pointed out that the student who would take up Classical Language with Mathematics would be burdened with a two-fold "double" Course—(1) the Mathematics, and the (2) proposed stiffened Classics.

Here now we were in a very undesirable position. We had discarded Mathematics and we could not, in the best interests of the student, replace it. At this there was much heartburning, and many proposals were made; but nothing could be done at that Meeting.

After that some of us felt it our duty to bring the whole matter before the Senate for final and effective disposal.

The proposals that came to our minds first of all were directed towards the altering of the regulations. But as the Senate had twice pronounced itself in favour of the Intermediate Courses, and as it was not considered fit to tamper with regulations at this early stage, I began to consider the feasibility of some plan whereby the aforesaid difficulty might be removed, without deviating from the regulations. And the present motion suggested itself to me as the best solution.

We all know that the University of Allahabad was founded for the express purpose of encouraging the study of the Classical Languages; but by a strange irony of fate while it had made rapid strides towards advance on the other sides, it had hitherto on this side been making as rapid strides towards the other end. And the new regulations as they stand force our hands towards our professed goal; and this is another reason why I do not make any of those proposals that would deprive us of this impetus towards the improvement of our classical studies.

Nor, on the other hand, do I consider it right at this stage to effect a complete divorce between the Classical Languages and Mathematics. That some part of the present Intermediate Course in Mathematics is needed for the general training of the youth is admitted by all—it does not appear right or desirable to deprive the classical student altogether of the chance of acquiring some Mathematics. And it is this portion of Mathematics that I hope will be placed under the first or simple Course of Mathematics.

From what I have said you will see that my motion is based upon the notion that the Mathematics intended to be alternated with Logic is the double and not the simple Course. If, however, I have the assurance of the Senate that it is only the simple Course of Mathematics that is so meant, then there will be no need for what I propose; as under those circumstances there need be no difficulty in the much-needed improvement of classical studies.

Mr. de la Fosse seconded the proposal.

After some discussion it was resolved that consideration of the proposal stand over to the next Meeting of the Senate.

Proposal No. 3.

Rev. Dr. Ewing.—I beg to propose—

That in view of the manifest inequality of “Deductive Logic” and unqualified “Mathematics,” in the A Course of the Intermediate Examination, and in view of the inadequacy of the A Course as outlined in the regulations, it be resolved that Chapter XIII, 6 of the University regulations be amended to read as follows :—

Every candidate shall be examined in—

(i) English and either

A.

- (ii) A Classical Language.
- (iii) History.
- (iv) Biology or Chemistry or First Course of Mathematics.
- (v) Deductive Logic.

B.

- (ii) Physics.
- (iii) Chemistry.
- (iv) First Course of Mathematics.
- (v) Second Course of Mathematics.

“ Mr. Vice-Chancellor.—In rising to present my motion to amend the regulations of the University with reference to the Intermediate Course I conceive myself to be acting from a sense of public duty. If there was one thing made clear at the Meeting of the Faculty of Arts in December it was that something urgently required to be done. This was not the opinion of the less experienced members of the Faculty, but of those whose experience is second to none in the University.

Doubtless there may be some whose instinct at this time would incline them to oppose any alteration of the regulations. In the minds of some the new regulations appear to have suddenly acquired immense sanctity. A little reflection will convince us that there is no reason for this view. When we were hurrying the regulations through last April the remark was frequently made that these were not to be looked upon as the ‘laws of the Medes and Persians.’ Even so there is a type of mind which inclines to oppose change. This type of Fellow was much in evidence at the November Meeting of the Senate and he may still be present to declare that since the new regulations were passed after much time and trouble, they should stand for a while untouched.

To this I would reply :—

- (a) The time and trouble expended by this University is nothing compared with what other Universities have been taking. An enquiry made a week or two ago revealed the fact that none of the other Universities have yet completed the new course.
- (b) Necessity refuses to be ruled by sentiment. As already urged the necessity to do something seems to be upon us.

As I have pointed out in the preamble of my motion, there is a manifest inequality between Deductive Logic and unqualified Mathematics which no amount of reference to the emphasis placed upon Logic by the School men of the Middle Ages or by the scholars of ancient India can gloss over. This point must be so clear to all who have either taught the two subjects or thought upon the matter that it does not seem necessary to lay further emphasis upon it.

I have also pointed out that the A Course of the Intermediate Examination is inadequate as it stands. If the Courses remain unchanged there can be no doubt that 95 per cent of the A Course students will choose Deductive Logic instead of Mathematics. I yield to no one in my admiration of the excellent qualities of the Indian student, and have frequently found myself here in the Senate differing in thought from more or less unkind allusions made to their zeal for knowledge. At the same time, it can confidently be affirmed that as things now are, only a few men will take the full Course of Mathematics. It has appeared clear from answers to the question put by Mr. de la Fosse that it is the purpose of the Science Faculty to require from A Course students the same amount of Mathematics as is to be required from the B Course men. This is tantamount to driving Mathematics out of the A Course.

With Mathematics practically driven out, what do we then have for the A Course men? The Course will read as follows: English, a Classical Language, History and Deductive Logic. In other words a subject has been dropped from the A Course, while the B Course requirement is the same as before. It will be replied that it is now proposed to strengthen the Classical Language by requiring students to pass in a Composition Paper. This is a change required by true scholarship and merely puts Classical Language work on the basis where it should always have been, but it does not make the A Course equivalent to the B Course. The change proposed is to take effect gradually beginning from the schools and therefore the additional burden will not be as much as to make Classical Language equal to a subject and a half. My observation is that Physics requires more work from the student now than a Classical Language does, and in improving the work in Classical Languages we are only bringing it up to the standard of the work required in Physics. I therefore submit that the A Course is inadequate.

In arranging the Courses in the motion that is now presented I have followed the old Courses which I believe to have been in the main satisfactory. As the members of the Senate are familiar with these Courses I need not speak at length in defence of them.

You will notice that I have recognized that it seems to be the Senate's wish to make Mathematics an optional subject in the A Course. This was the mind of the depleted Senate in April and also seemed to be the mind of the full Senate in November.

The point which I desire to bring to decision is this, Does the Senate wish to exclude Mathematics from the Course? As I have pointed out above, unless a change be made, this will be the practical outcome. Two forces were at work when the Senate last April took up the question of Mathematics in the Intermediate Course:—

- (1) There were those who held that those students who are not endowed with a gift for Mathematics but are able to do excellent work in other subjects should be allowed an option. This, I take it, to have been the position of our former learned Vice-Chancellor.
- (2) There were those who felt that the Classes in Mathematics should only contain those students who have a zeal for the subject, and that therefore the A Course should be so arranged as to practically drop Mathematics.

In preparing this motion I have admitted the former contention but not the latter, and am not convinced that the latter represents the opinion of the Senate. I would venture to urge that the Course should be so arranged that the Colleges will be able to offer in the A Course as over against Mathematics a course equal in difficulty to Mathematics, so that those Colleges which wish to continue the teaching of Mathematics in the A Course shall be practically able to do so. Personally, I should prefer to make the Course which alternates with Mathematics even more difficult than Mathematics. Mathematics has by long experience been shown to be an exceedingly valuable 'discipline.' I should think the University, while making a place for those who have a constitutional inaptitude for Mathematics, would only wish such students to go on to the B.A. Courses on condition of their having done specially good work in some other subject or subjects.

I believe that the arrangement of Courses which I have proposed would make an opening for special cases and would still keep the A Course upon a satisfactory basis.

While holding strongly to the proposal to which I have now given expression, I would say in conclusion that I have no inordinate zeal for my own proposals and am perfectly willing to accept any amendment which will adequately deal with the situation."

Mr. Cameron seconded the proposal.

Rev. Mr. Crosthwaite.—I wish to oppose Dr. Ewing's motion. I quite agree with him that the present Courses are most unsatisfactory, and that it is impossible so to stiffen the Logic as to make it an adequate alternative to the full course of Mathematics. I do not, however, think that his proposal provides us with a satisfactory solution of our difficulties. I find two objections to it: (1) It seems to me that no subject should be prescribed for the Intermediate Examination which does not serve as a preparation for one of the B.A. Courses. The Biology suggested by Dr. Ewing leads on to nothing. On the other hand, the combination of Physiology and Logic proposed by Mr. Pirie and Mr. Ward as an alternative to the full course of Mathematics would form an introduction to the Philosophy of the B.A., the Physiology being useful as a preparation for Psychology. Mr. Pirie's proposal, therefore, seems to me better than Dr. Ewing's. (2) There has of late years been a tendency, which bears very hard on some of our pupils, to limit the possibilities of a student's choice of subjects when he reaches the B.A. Courses, and to make it exceedingly difficult for him to rectify any error he may have made earlier through an unfortunate choice of subjects. None of the proposals before us entirely remedy this state of things; but Dr. Ewing's makes it worse by forcing all who would take Mathematics for the B.A. into the B. Course of the Intermediate, since a first Course of Mathematics alone in the Intermediate would not qualify a student for reading Mathematics for the B.A.

I think that on this ground also Mr. Pirie's amendment presents us with a more satisfactory combination of subjects than Dr. Ewing's motion.

I can see no reason why all who wish to read Mathematics should be forced to read Science, nor why such combinations as a Classical Language and Mathematics, History and Mathematics or Philosophy and Mathematics should be made impossible by our regulations.

On a proposal by the Hon'ble the Vice-Chancellor that the amendments be also considered with the original proposal, the following amendments were moved :—

Amendment No. 1.

Mr. Pirie.—Mr. Vice-Chancellor, I rise to propose the following amendment to Dr. Ewing's motion :—

That the examination for the A Course Intermediate shall be in the following subjects :—

- | | |
|----------------------------------|---|
| (1) English | |
| (2) A Classical Language | |
| (3) History | |
| (4) Elementary Physiology and | } or (4) Mathematics as in the B Course. |
| (5) Deductive Logic | |

I fully endorse all that Dr. Ewing had said as to the absurdity of making Deductive Logic and Mathematics alternative courses. The former represents only one-third at most of the work required for the latter; and if, as Dr. Ewing hinted, any Principal were to apply pressure to enforce the compulsory study of the subject which offers most resistance, he would, as my experience leads me to believe, have to face the unwelcome result of a considerable migration from his College. I propose to make the alternative a little more rational by adding Elementary Physiology to Deductive Logic. The proposed subject does not cover so much ground as Biology, while it is more interesting and at the same time more useful to our students, in as much as it supplies to a certain extent a link in the chain of studies for the degree. The old Greek Professor began his lectures on Philosophy with the motto gnothi seauton—"know thyself." He, it may be presumed, referred to the mental and moral aspect of the student's self. But the modern Professor of Psychology expects his student to be acquainted with the material portion of his personality as well—he requires of him a knowledge of both body and mind. Now our students are lamentably ignorant of the structure and functions of what may be plainly called "their own insides." In my opinion, the introduction of a course of Elementary Physiology, similar to what is read in most secondary schools in England and America, would not only be of considerable practical utility both as regards their physical training and philosophical education, but would also be an attractive relief from the somewhat dry and abstract studies of the A Course generally.

Mr. Ward seconded the motion.

Rev. Dr. Ewing withdrew his proposal in favour of Mr. Pirie's amendment.

Amendment No. 2.

"I shall propose as an amendment to Dr. Ewing's proposal, the following:—

Every candidate shall be examined in—

- | | |
|--------------------------|------------------|
| (1) English | |
| and | |
| either A. | or B. |
| (2) A Classical Language | (2) Mathematics. |
| or Mathematics. | (3) Physics. |
| (3) History. | (4) Chemistry. |
| (4) Logic. | |

This amendment if adopted will harmonize the Intermediate A Course with Group II of subjects of study for the B.A. Examination by providing a choice between the Classical Language and Mathematics. And Biology being a subject not recognized for study for any of the higher examinations will be omitted.

SURAJ PRAKASH."

Mr. Chakravarti in moving the amendment which stood in the name of P. Suraj Prakash said that in the absence of the Pandit he had much pleasure in bringing the motion before the Senate as it seemed to solve in the most satisfactory manner the difficulty that had evidently been weighing upon the minds of a considerable number of Fellows regarding the disparity of a full course in Mathematics and Deductive Logic. They feel that unless some steps are taken to remove it the inclusion of Mathematics on the A side would mean only a paper encouragement of the subject as most boys would take up Deductive Logic instead. P. Suraj Prakash's proposal makes Mathematics alternate with Classical Language, the two subjects being now equally balanced. The only objection he had heard mentioned against such a course was that it marred the peculiar character of the A Course which consisted in its study of the Classical Language as a compulsory subject, but it is forgotten that the Intermediate Examination is only a stepping stone to the Degree Examination, and that it is the Course for the latter that gives the character to a particular department of study. It will be noticed that the Degree Examination on the Arts side does give such an option as is proposed by P. Suraj Prakash, and it therefore seemed in every way desirable that the Intermediate Examination should be in a line with and lead up to the B.A. Examination.

Dr. Richardson seconded the motion.

On a motion by the Hon'ble Pt. Madan Mohan Malaviya it was resolved that the discussion of the amendment as well as that of Mr. Pirie's motion stand over until the next Meeting of the Senate.

The sum of the angles of a triangle is equal to two right angles.

If the sides of a convex polygon are produced in order, the sum of the angles so formed is equal to four right angles.

If two triangles have two sides of the one equal to two sides of the other, each to each, and also the angles contained by these sides equal, the triangles are congruent.

If two triangles have two angles of the one equal to two angles of the other, each to each, and also one side of the one equal to the corresponding side of the other, the triangles are congruent.

If two sides of a triangle are equal, the angles opposite to these sides are equal ; and the converse.

If two triangles have the three sides of the one equal to the three sides of the other, each to each, the triangles are congruent.

If two right-angled triangles have their hypotenuses equal, and one side of the one equal to one side of the other, the triangles are congruent.

If two sides of a triangle are unequal, the greater side has the greater angle opposite to it; and the converse.

Of all the straight lines that can be drawn to a given straight line from a given point outside it, the perpendicular is the shortest.

The opposite sides and angles of a parallelogram are equal, each diagonal bisects the parallelogram and the diagonals bisect one another.

If there are three or more parallel straight lines and the intercepts made by them on any straight line that cuts them are equal, then the corresponding intercepts on any other straight line that cuts them are also equal.

AREAS.

Parallelograms on the same or equal bases and of the same altitude are equal in area.

Triangles on the same or equal bases and of the same altitude are equal in area.

Equal triangles on the same or equal bases are of the same altitude.

Illustrations and explanations of the geometrical theorems corresponding to the following Algebraical identities :—

$$k(a + b + c + \dots) = ka + kb + kc + \dots,$$

$$(a + b)^2 = a^2 + 2ab + b^2$$

$$(a - b)^2 = a^2 - 2ab + b^2$$

$$a^2 - b^2 = (a + b)(a - b)$$

The square on a side of a triangle is greater than, equal to, or less than, the sum of the squares on the other two sides, according as the angle contained by those sides is obtuse, right, or acute. The difference in the case of inequality is twice the rectangle contained by one of the two sides and the projection on it of the other.

LocI.

The locus of a point which is equidistant from two fixed points is the perpendicular bisector of the straight line joining the two fixed points.

The locus of a point which is equidistant from two intersecting straight lines consists of the pair of straight lines which bisect the angles between the two given lines.

THE CIRCLE.

A straight line drawn from the centre of a circle to bisect a chord which is not the diameter is at right angles to the chord ; conversely the perpendicular to a chord from the centre bisects the chord.

There is one circle, and one only, which passes through three given points not in a straight line.

In equal circles (or in the same circle) (i) if two arcs subtend equal angles at the centres, they are equal ; (ii) conversely, if two arcs are equal, they subtend equal angles at the centres.

In equal circles (or in the same circle) (i) if two chords are equal, they cut off equal arcs ; (ii) conversely, if two arcs are equal the chords of the arcs are equal.

Equal chords in a circle are equidistant from the centre ; and the converse.

The tangents at any point of a circle and the radius through the point are perpendicular to one another.

If two circles touch, the point of contact lies on the straight line through the centres.

The angle which an arc of a circle subtends at the centre is double that which it subtends at any point on the remaining part of the circumference.

Angles in the same segment of a circle are equal ; and, if the line joining two points subtends equal angles at two other points on the same side of it, the four points lie on a circle.

The angle in a semi-circle is a right angle, the angle in a segment greater than a semi-circle is less than a right angle, and the angle in a segment less than a semi-circle is greater than a right angle.

The opposite angles of any quadrilateral inscribed in a circle are supplementary; and the converse.

If a straight line touch a circle, and from the point of contact a chord be drawn, the angles which this chord makes with the tangent are equal to the angles in the alternate segments.

If two chords of a circle intersect either inside or outside the circle, the rectangle contained by the parts of the one is equal to the rectangle contained by the parts of the other.

PROPORTION : SIMILAR TRIANGLES.

If a straight line is drawn parallel to one side of a triangle, the other two sides are divided proportionally; and the converse.

If two triangles are equiangular, their corresponding sides are proportional; and the converse.

If two triangles have one angle of the one equal to one angle of the other and the sides about these equal angles proportional, the triangles are similar.

The internal bisector of an angle of a triangle divides the opposite sides internally in the ratio of the sides containing the angle, and likewise the external bisector externally.

The ratio of the areas of similar triangles is equal to the ratio of the squares on corresponding sides.

The Board considered the relative merits of the two text-books, viz., Morris' Geometrical Drawing at present in use and Harrison's Practical Plane and Solid Geometry sent up with a recommendation from the Text-book Committee, and are of opinion that while Harrison's book is more comprehensive and more in keeping with the new method of teaching Geometry, Morris' book edited by Jesse is more practical and better suited to the present requirements of Indian students. They therefore recommend that no change be made.

19. The Minutes of the Meeting of the Faculty of Arts, held on the 8th February, 1906, were confirmed.

20. With reference to Resolution No. 7 of the Meeting of the Faculty of Arts, held on the 9th December, 1905, the Registrar reported that the amount of Mathematics prescribed by the Faculty of Science for the A Course and the B Course of the Intermediate Examination of 1908 was, in accordance with Syndicate Resolution No. 87, dated the 6th January, 1906, circulated to the members of the Faculty of Arts on the 3rd February, 1906.

21. With reference to regulation 13, Chapter III, of the revised regulations of the University, the Faculty considered whether it should add any, and if so, what persons, possessing special knowledge of the subject of the study represented by the Faculty.

It was resolved that there is no necessity at present to make an addition to the number of the Faculty.

22. In connexion with the question as to certain difficulties arising out of the recent alterations in the Intermediate A. Course by the alternation of Deductive Logic with Mathematics,

The Rev. Mr. Ewing moved the following proposal :—

(a) That the Intermediate Course in Mathematics should, on the A Course side, be divided into two parts to be known as "First Course" and "Second Course".

(b) That this division should be applied to the Intermediate A Course as follows :—

- (1) English.
- (2) A Classical Language.
- (3) History.
- (4) Physiology or First Course of Mathematics.
- (5) Deductive Logic or Second Course of Mathematics.

Mr. Ewing advocated the (a) section of his proposal on the ground that otherwise Mathematics, which affords so highly valuable a discipline to the mind, would be driven out of the A side of the Intermediate Course.

Mr. Jones seconded Mr. Ewing's motion.

Mr. Pirie observed that the two papers in Mathematics proposed by the Faculty of Science for the Intermediate Course might be accepted as constituting the 'First' and 'Second' Course in Mathematics respectively.

Pandit Ganga Nath Jha pointed out that his motion regarding the Intermediate Courses which was to come up before the Senate was exactly on the lines laid down by the Faculty of Science.

The Rev. Mr. Crosthwaite said that he did not approve of the division of the subject indicated by those two papers. The first paper should, e.g., contain elementary Conics and the more advanced parts of Trigonometry should be excluded from it. Generally, the more elementary parts of the several subjects should be included in the first paper, and the more advanced ones in the second paper.

Mr. G. N. Chakravarti remarked that the Faculty of Science should be consulted regarding the division of Mathematics into two Courses. And other proposals regarding the Intermediate Courses, as e.g., that of Mr. Towle, should be considered before the question as to the Mathematics was decided.

The Rev. Mr. Westcott also, while expressing himself in favour of the division of Mathematics into two Courses, was in favour of the point being referred to the Faculty of Science.

Mr. Cholmondeley said that the general principle of the retention of Mathematics on the literary side of the Intermediate Courses should be considered first, and only after that the proper division of the subject.

Sir George Knox also expressed himself strongly in favour of the Faculty of Science being consulted. He himself, however, he said, was in favour of there being for the present no Mathematics alongside with Classics. It was a matter of the greatest importance that the study of Classics in our University should be put on a proper basis, and as things were now, any thoroughness in Classics and Mathematics was not to be expected from our students. There should be no shoddy learning; either proper Classics or proper Mathematics. In the future, when further progress had been made on either side, a combination of the two subjects might perhaps again be attempted.

Mr. Ewing, in replying to the objections, pointed out that it was undesirable that the students should devote more time to Classics as long as the training in that subject remained so imperfect in the schools. The teaching in the schools should first be greatly improved; until that had been accomplished, elementary Mathematics in the Intermediate Classes should remain open to all who wished to take it.

The motion was thereupon put to the vote and lost by 21 votes against 20.

23. The Rev. Mr. Holland thereupon moved that the difficulties existing out of the recent alterations in the Intermediate A Course by the alternation of Deductive Logic with Mathematics should be dealt with in the manner proposed by Mr. Towle in an amendment to a motion of Mr. Pirie which was to come up at the Meeting of the Senate—to the effect—

‘That the Examination for the A Course Intermediate shall be in the following subjects:—

- | | |
|---|--|
| (1) English. | |
| (2) A Classical Language. | |
| (3) History. | |
| (4) Elementary Political Economy and | } or (4) Mathematics as in the B Course. |
| (5) Deductive Logic | |

This motion was seconded by Mr. G. N. Chakravarti.

Pandit Ganga Nath Jha pointed out that the question as to the division of Mathematics into two Courses should first be considered by the Senate, and moved the adjournment of the discussion.

This proposal was seconded by Pandit Aditya Ram Bhattacharya and carried by 22 votes against 3.

24. The Registrar reported that no report was forthcoming from the Board of Studies in History and Geography on the application, dated the 22nd December 1905, from the Head Masters of the local High Schools, praying that the course in Geography for the Entrance Examination of 1906 be limited to half the prescribed text book, viz., Arden Wood's Geography, the book being very long and containing much new matter with which the students are not familiar.

It was resolved that the application be again referred to the Board of Studies in History and Geography with a view to the Entrance Examination of 1907.

APPENDIX C.

NOTE ON ESTABLISHMENT OF A LAW COLLEGE BY THE UNIVERSITY OF ALLAHABAD.

There are certain initial expenses required if the University contemplate establishing a School of Law in any way worthy of the name. These expenses must be met by a grant of money and to expect to recover these initial expenses from the fees of students or any other similar income is so futile that we have left them out of the calculations which follow. If the School prove a success we have little doubt that this initial expenditure will in the long run be recovered. We cannot see any reason why if properly equipped such a school should not repay more than the sums expended to inaugurate it.. To handicap the School as it starts with such expenditure in whole or in part is to put upon it a burden greater than it can bear and to doom it to a mediocrity which will invite competition and must in the long run mean failure.

The expenses we allude to are :—

1st.—A building with necessary offices. The cost of these may be set down at Rs. 1,00,000 with Rs. 25,000 for furniture.

2nd.—A properly equipped Library. The cost of this may be estimated at Rs. 10,000.

Assuming that these expenses are met by an initial grant, we are of opinion that the current expenditure can be met by sources of income which are also recurrent and which we shall presently set out.

At present the Law classes at the Muir College are taught by one Professor and two Law Readers. The salary of these gentlemen comes to Rs. 8,400 in the year. Beyond this there is no expenditure

The income from fees is Rs. 7,350. This income has been steadily rising.

			Rs.
In 1898 to 1899	it was	..	3,842
„ 1899 to 1900	„	..	4,219
„ 1900 to 1901	„	..	4,611
„ 1901 to 1902	„	..	5,256
„ 1902 to 1903	„	..	7,350
„ 1903 to 1904	„	..	9,968
„ 1904 to 1905	„	...	10,301

The income resulting from Examination for the degree of LL.B. in the year 1904-1905 was Rs. 1,900. This represents the amount saved out of Examination fees after paying all the expenses of the examination. Looking to the figures for the same period 1898 to 1905, these savings amount to Rs. 2,000 per annum. We may safely start with the assumption that we can count upon an annual income of Rs. 9,000.

As was pointed out in a previous Minute the Law Professor at the Muir College gives the students a course of lectures extending over eight months in each year. The course occupies two hours on three days in each week.

This is quite insufficient, and it has been calculated that what the students require is at least three hours a week Professorial and four hours a week Tutorial teaching.

After a very careful consideration we have come to the conclusion that the College will require the following staff :—

A Principal whose pay should be Rs. 1,000 a month.

A Professor of Law—Salary Rs. 400 a month.

Two Readers at Rs. 250 a month each=Rs. 500.

One Clerk at Rs. 30 a month.

Two peons at Rs. 5 each=Rs. 10.

This comes to Rs. 1,940 a month.

Contingent expenditure would be :—

Lighting, Rs. 15 a month.

Stationery, Rs. 5 a month.

Hot weather establishment, Rs. 150 in the year.

Library, Rs. 500 in the year. This can with great advantage be increased to Rs. 1,000. We have then as the cost of the College a sum of Rs. 24,170, say, Rs. 25,000.

We do not think it necessary to provide for pension or leave allowances. The vacations, which all concerned with the College enjoy, will be sufficient at any rate for the next five years to come.

The next question that arises is—Are the College staff to be wholstime men? On the whole we see no necessity for providing further than that they must engage themselves during term time to take no work outside Allahabad. The majority of students will be men who will prefer lectures at hours which will not interfere with the hours observed by Courts, viz., 10 to 4.

Assuming that the initial annual cost of the College be Rs. 25,000, it remains to be seen what are the sources of income.

Owing to the recent change in the High Court Rules which require from all Vakils attendance at College lectures, we think it safe to estimate that there will be at least 100 students in each year's class. The number of students during the last five years has been as follows:—

1900	64
1901	67
1902	83
1903	111
1904	119
1905	156

The number of candidates who have presented themselves for examination at the High Court Examination for Vakils has been:—

1900	130
1901	124
1902	177
1903	144
1904	97

Assuming that out of these there are thirty candidates who have attended the Law Class Lectures and who have offered themselves for examination both in the University Degree and this Examination, it will be seen that the estimate of 100 students in each year's class is not extravagant.

We think that each student should pay an Entrance fee of Rs. 10: that during the first year he should pay Rs. 5 per mensem and during the second year Rs. 8 per mensem. We have as the result :—

	Rs.
Entrance fee	1,000
Fees of 1st year students	6,000
Fees of 2nd year students	9,600
Total	16,600

We anticipate an income of Rs. 5,625 saved from fees for examinations.

The number of Examinees may be calculated at 225, as they include not only the 100 students assumed to be at the Law College but students from the other affiliated Colleges.

Each candidate for the previous examination has to pay Rs. 20. The actual cost of the examination, as there is no viva voce Examination, should not exceed Rs. 2,250, and the net resultant savings would be Rs. 2,250.

In the Final Examination each candidate pays a fee of Rs. 40. Experience shows that the average cost per candidate is Rs. 25. The savings resultant would be Rs. 3,375. This gives an income of Rs. 22,225, and if this estimate is accurate, the expenditure will not be fully met by the income at present and at any rate for some time to come.

There is one further possible source of income, viz., savings from the examination fees paid by candidates for the Vakil's Examination held by the High Court. These would be considerable, but as this source of income depends upon whether the High Court would abolish their examination, we have not taken it into consideration.

In the Madras College the number of students now averages 300. The staff engaged in their tuition is a Principal who is also Senior Professor, a Junior Professor, two Assistant Professors.

Numerically the staff proposed for the 200 students in the Law College is the same as that in Madras. The pay given to the Principal and Junior Professor are in excess of the scale we propose. The Principal gets Rs. 1,000, the Junior Professor Rs. 650. In each case the pay rises by annual increments of Rs. 25 per mensem until the maximum of Rs. 1,250 and Rs. 900 is reached. In the case of these two officers if their services are retained for more than five years they are entitled to pension. The Assistant Professors are entitled to no pension.

It must, however, be remembered that the expenses of a Presidency town are much greater in the way of house rent, servants, &c., than in Allahabad, and that in Madras the Principal and Junior Professor are debarred from all but Chamber or Consulting Practice. The two appointments are appointments made by the Secretary of State, the former is open only to graduates who are also Barristers of Law of at least five years' standing, the latter to graduates who are also Barristers of three years' standing or Vakils of the High Court of Madras of five years' standing. They are for a period of five years subject to good conduct and determination by six months' notice on either side.

We think that the nomination should be by the Senate subject to confirmation by the Chancellor, but that in other respects the conditions required in Madras should be required here. The appointment of the Assistant Professors might rest with the Senate and the service be subject to a term's notice on either side.

We do not think it necessary to provide a Hostel. There are already four Hostels existent in Allahabad and these may be trusted to extend their present accommodation if the demand arose. The utmost that would be required is grants in aid of building. These could be met from the increase in fees, for the staff is probably sufficient as in Madras to teach 300 students. Such portion of the 200 students as do not live with parents or accredited relatives can be accommodated in the Hostels at present existing.

There remains the question whether in the interests of other Colleges such an institution should be contemplated at all. The answer to those who maintain that if the University take up this as part of their work as a teaching University would seem to be first that the objection raised would more or less apply to the foundation of any chair by the University. Whatever chairs the University might found at Allahabad would, if worthy of the name, attract students in that subject to Allahabad and would prevent if the principle were considered to prevail, the foundation of any chair. The University has to face the fact that a larger proportion of its alumni at present devote themselves to Law, and if it makes a beginning in teaching the interests of the many have first to be considered. Again the fact must be accepted that at present even at Allahabad there are not to be found any who are both capable of and willing to undertake the very special work which is expected of a person qualified to fill the chair of Principal of a Law College. If this be the case, the same may be said with greater truth of all other places within the University sphere. Ought the University—if it is in a position to provide proper teaching—to rest content that students should be left to inferior tuition? The answer appears obvious. Probably when the University have established the higher standard, private munificence will lead to the endowments enabling other Colleges to establish teaching of a similar standard. On the other hand, if the University do not provide a wider, more enlightened and sounder teaching of Law, the present standard may and must be acquiesced in for years and years to come.

Agenda Item No. I.

The Minutes of the Meeting of the Senate held on the 8th January 1906. were confirmed.

Agenda Item No. II.

Under Regulation 1, Chapter VI, of the University Regulations, the Meeting proceeded to appoint a Registrar for the University, vice Mr. Dodd resigned.

The Director of Public Instruction, U. P. (Mr. Lewis), proposed that Dr. Thibaut be appointed Registrar of the University for a period of three years. The proposal was seconded by the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Aikman and carried unanimously.

Agenda Item No. III.

The Meeting considered a proposal made by the Director of Public Instruction U. P. (Mr. Lewis) and seconded by Mr. Cox, that a bonus equivalent to half a month's pay for each year's service—or Rs. 3,000—should be granted to Mr. Dodd who had retired from the Registrarship.

Mr. Lewis directed the attention of the Meeting to the fact that this proposal had the approval of the Syndicate which had recorded its sense of the eminent services rendered to the University by Mr. Dodd. He himself, he said, wished to bear testimony to the high value of these services. Mr. Dodd had performed his onerous and responsible duties with admirable zeal and accuracy, had managed to keep the machinery of the ever-expanding examinations in perfect order, had in many cases assisted the Syndicate with valuable advice on important points of business, and had helped to preserve smooth and harmonious relations between the University and the Educational Department.

On a question asked by Mr. Ganga Prasad Varma, the Vice-Chancellor explained that there was nothing in the Regulations prohibiting a bonus being granted to a retiring officer of the University.

Mr. Cox, in seconding the motion, spoke in high terms of Mr. Dodd's close and unremitting attention to his duties, no bonus could have been more thoroughly earned.

Sir George Knox, in supporting the motion, said he wished to state how much he himself, when holding the Vice-Chancellorship, had been indebted to Mr. Dodd for his zeal, devotion to work and knowledge of business details.

Mr. Ganga Prasad Varma, opposed the motion on financial grounds. The finances of the University were not, he said, in a sufficiently flourishing condition for such bonuses being given.

The motion was thereupon put to the vote and carried.

Agenda Item No. IV.

The Registrar reported receipt of G. O. No. 754/XV—247A, dated the 29th November, 1905, according sanction to the rules for payment of travelling and halting allowance to Fellows attending University Meetings (Vide Appendix A).

It was resolved that the aforesaid G. O. be recorded.

Agenda Item No. V.

The Registrar reported receipt of G. O. No. 7/XV—570A-3, dated the 5th January, 1906, intimating resignation by Messrs. Morison and Cornah of their Fellowships; and declaring, under section 11 (2) of the Universities Act of 1904, the office of the following Fellows to be vacated—

1. Maulvi Syed Ashraf Ali, M.A.
2. Mr. F. L. Reid.
3. Mr. Muhammad Hadi, M.R.A.C., M.R.A.S.

It was resolved that the aforesaid G. O. be recorded.

Agenda Item No. VI.

Under Regulation 4, Chapter III, of the University Regulations, the following assignment to the Faculties, made by the Vice-Chancellor, of the Fellows nominated by His Honour the Chancellor of the University (vide Appendix B) was confirmed, viz.—

(a) to the Faculty of Law—

1. The Hon'ble Mr. Justice H. G. Richards, K.C.
2. Qazi Aziz-ud-din Ahmad.

(b) to the Faculty of Arts—

1. Mr. W. A. J. Archbold, M.A., LL.B.
2. The Hon'ble Raja Ali Muhammad Khan, Khan Bahadur of Mahmudabad.
3. Mirza Habib Husain, B.A.

Agenda Item No. VII.

On a report by the Registrar the receipt of G. O. No. 14/XV—570A-3, dated the 5th January, 1906, intimating nomination under section 13 (2) of the Indian Universities Act of 1904, by His Honour the Chancellor of the University of Maharaja Bhagwati Prasad Singh of Balrampur as an Honorary Fellow for life (vide Appendix C), was recorded.

Agenda Item No. VIII.

With reference to the Resolution of the Meeting of the Senate held on the 4th September, 1905 (printed on page 38 of the Minutes of the said Meeting), the Registrar reported receipt of G. O. No. 61/XV—247A, dated the 15th January, 1906 (vide Appendix D), intimating—

(1) that the Government is not prepared to make any further grant to the University specially to enable Fellows to travel first class by railway ;

(2) that a grant of Rs. 20,000 is about to be made to the University in the current year for strengthening the administration of the University, the inspection of Colleges, and the travelling expenses of Fellows.

It was resolved that the aforesaid G. O. be recorded.

Agenda Item No. IX.

With reference to the Resolution of the Meeting of the Senate held on the 4th September, 1905 (printed on page 43 of the Minutes of the said Meeting), the Registrar reported receipt of G. O. No. 77/XV—394A of the 19th January, 1906 (vide Appendix E), intimating—

(1) that the allotment made for the purchase by Government of the Darbhanga Castle as well as that made for the construction of an office for the University Registrar cannot be cancelled now;

(2) that a grant of Rs. 20,000 per annum for four years has been made by the Government of India for administration, inspection and travelling allowance to Fellows, and that another grant of Rs. 20,000 per annum for four years has been made by the Government of India towards building an University Library.

The Vice-Chancellor said that the University was greatly indebted to Government for these liberal grants, and suggested the appointment of a Sub-Committee of seven members to consider the question how the grant for the University Library could best be utilised.

The appointment of such a Sub-Committee was thereupon formally proposed by Mr. Cox, and duly seconded.

The Rev. Mr. Ewing enquired whether that Sub-Committee would have full powers to select a site and make other arrangements.

The Vice-Chancellor explained that the Committee would only prepare a scheme to be submitted to the Senate.

The Rev. Mr. Haythornthwaite emphasised that only preliminary considerations should be entrusted to the Committee.

Mr. Jennings thereupon moved an amendment that the Sub-Committee should be appointed by the Syndicate.

Mr. Aziz-ud-din Ahmed seconded the amendment.

The Vice-Chancellor explained that according to Regulations the matter in any case would come before the Syndicate before going to the Senate.

Mr. Jennings pressed his amendment.

The Hon'ble the Chief Justice, Sir John Stanley, asked what the special powers of the Sub-Committee would be.

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya said the Sub-Committee should make enquiries as to the most suitable site for the Library and call for plans and estimates. It should co-operate with the Committee of the Public Library, and early steps should be taken.

After some remarks by the Rev. Mr. Ewing as to the desirability of the Sub-Committee being appointed by the Senate, not the Syndicate, Mr. Jennings' amendment was put to the vote and lost by 25 votes against 14.

The discussion of the original motion proposed by Mr. Cox was thereupon resumed, and it was proposed by Sir John Stanley that the motion be accepted in the following form :—

“That a Sub-Committee be appointed by the Senate to select a suitable site for a University Library, and to report thereon to the Syndicate: and also to formulate a scheme for the application of the grant made by Government towards the building of such a Library and report the same to the Syndicate.”

Mr. Archbold pointed out the importance of certain preliminary questions connected with the establishment of a University Library at Allahabad. A main point to consider was, e.g., whether the Library should be one of reference or a Circulating Library. Matters of this kind should first be considered by the Syndicate.

Mr. Pandit, in supporting the motion, remarked that so large a question should not be left to the Syndicate which was constituted for other purposes. The Senate should appoint a Committee, and should at once express its wishes as to the general lines on which the grant of Rs. 80,000 should be utilised,—what part of the grant should be applied to building purposes, and what part to the purchase of books, and so on.

Sir George Knox declared that the demand to appoint a Committee to report to the Senate was a revolutionary one, in so far as it implied an abrogation of Regulation 25, Chapter I. At any rate a reference of the matter to the Syndicate should be definitely stated. The Sub-Committee should report first to the Syndicate and then the question should pass on to the Senate.

The motion as formulated by Sir John Stanley was thereupon put to the vote and carried by 46 votes.

After some discussion as to what the number of members of the Sub-Committee should be, and the final acceptance of a proposal made by Mr. Cox and seconded by Mr. Ward that there should be seven members, it was proposed by Mr. Justice Banerji that the following seven Fellows be appointed to serve on the Sub-Committee—The Vice-Chancellor, Sir G. Knox, Mr. Cox, Dr. Thibaut, Dr. Satish Chandra Banerji, the Rev. Mr. Ewing, and Maulvi Karamat Husein; the Vice-Chancellor to be the Convener.

This proposal was carried unanimously.

Mr. Jennings thereupon moved an amendment that the Sub-Committee should be appointed by the Syndicate.

Mr. Aziz-ud-din Ahmed seconded the amendment.

The Vice-Chancellor explained that according to Regulations the matter in any case would come before the Syndicate before going to the Senate.

Mr. Jennings pressed his amendment.

The Hon'ble the Chief Justice, Sir John Stanley, asked what the special powers of the Sub-Committee would be.

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya said the Sub-Committee should make enquiries as to the most suitable site for the Library and call for plans and estimates. It should co-operate with the Committee of the Public Library, and early steps should be taken.

After some remarks by the Rev. Mr. Ewing as to the desirability of the Sub-Committee being appointed by the Senate, not the Syndicate, Mr. Jennings' amendment was put to the vote and lost by 25 votes against 14.

The discussion of the original motion proposed by Mr. Cox was thereupon resumed, and it was proposed by Sir John Stanley that the motion be accepted in the following form :—

“That a Sub-Committee be appointed by the Senate to select a suitable site for a University Library, and to report thereon to the Syndicate: and also to formulate a scheme for the application of the grant made by Government towards the building of such a Library and report the same to the Syndicate.”

After some discussion as to what the number of members of the Sub-Committee should be, and the final acceptance of a proposal made by Mr. Cox and seconded by Mr. Ward that there should be seven members, it was proposed by Mr. Justice Banerji that the following seven Fellows be appointed to serve on the Sub-Committee—The Vice-Chancellor, Sir G. Knox, Mr. Cox, Dr. Thibaut, Dr. Satish Chandra Banerji, the Rev. Mr. Ewing, and Maulvi Karamat Husein; the Vice-Chancellor to be the Convener.

This proposal was carried unanimously.

Agenda Item No. X.

Mr. G. N. Chakravarti moved the following proposals:—

1. That in Chapter XIX of the University Regulations the following words be added to Regulation 3:—

“The examination in the practice of Teaching shall be conducted at the Training College at which the student was trained and the Examiners shall also take into consideration the record that has been kept at the College of the work done by the student during his course of training.”

2. That in the same Chapter a new Regulation to be numbered 4 be added and should run as follows:—

“Probationary certificates will be issued to all candidates who have passed the Examination, but the Degree will not be conferred until the candidate has completed one year's continuous and satisfactory service in a recognised secondary school or College.”

In support of the first part of his motion Mr. Chakravarti said that he was merely acting as the mouthpiece of the Board of Studies in Teaching. Lessons given by the students of Training Colleges before Examiners no doubt gave some notion of the Examinees' capacities, but were somewhat too much of the nature of theatrical exhibitions, and at any rate should be supplemented by consideration of the work done by the students in the course of their career at the College. The Principal of the Training College after all was the best judge of the merits of his students, and his opinion therefore should be taken into consideration by the Board of Examiners.

With regard to the second part of the motion the proposer remarked that at present not unfrequently men who had done no teaching work were appointed Inspecting Officers. Degrees in Teaching should be conferred only on men who had actually done satisfactory work as Teachers.

The motion was seconded by Mr. Jesse.

The Director of Public Instruction, U. P. (Mr. Lewis), supported the motion as sound, but suggested that the word 'thereafter' be added between 'has' and 'completed' in the new Regulation (4) proposed by the mover.

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya proposed as an amendment that the words 'recognised secondary' in the proposed Regulation (4) be omitted.

This amendment was ruled out of order as no notice of it had been given.

Mr. Jennings asked in what sense the phrase 'satisfactory service' in Part 2 of the proposal was to be understood; whether satisfactory to the University or to some other authority?

Sir George Knox also emphasised the need of this point being decided.

The Hon'ble Mr. Justice Banerji enquired whether it was the practice in Training Colleges to keep records of the students' work.

Mr. de la Fosse explained that full records of such work were kept which would enable Examiners to form a sound opinion of the merit of candidates.

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya thereupon proposed that the two parts of the motion should be voted upon separately.

This suggestion was accepted. The first part of the motion, with the modification proposed by the Director of Public Instruction, was thereupon put to the vote and carried by 42 votes.

The Meeting proceeded to discuss the second part of the proposal.

Mr. de la Fosse, in supporting it, remarked that all good English Training Colleges recognised a year's practical teaching work as an essential part of their scheme. No degree should be conferred without such work being taken into account.

Mr. Archbold pointed out that to insist on continuous work in one School or College as an indispensable condition for a degree would constitute a hardship, and that hence for "School or College" there should be substituted the words "Schools or Colleges."

The Vice-Chancellor thereupon proposing that Part 2 of the proposals should be reconsidered and re-drafted by the Board of Studies in Teaching, Part 2 was for the present withdrawn by the proposer.

Agenda Item No. XI.

In accordance with a Resolution of the Meeting of the Senate held on the 8th January, 1906, the Meeting proceeded to consider the following proposal by Pandit Ganga Nath Jha, viz.—

"That in view of the recent change in the courses for the Intermediate Examination, it is desirable that there should be a bifurcatory adjustment between the courses in the Classical Languages and Mathematics, so that one who takes up the full course of the one will take only the first course of the other, and vice versa."

Pandit Ganga Nath Jha explained that he wished to propose his motion in the form given in motion 6 of the motions before the Senate, viz.—

That for the Intermediate Examination the courses in Mathematics and Classical Languages should be divided into two parts, to be called the "first" and "second" courses respectively, so that the candidate who takes up the "first" course of the Classical Language will take the two courses of Mathematics and vice versa—provision being thus made for the following three alternative groups on the 'A' side—

(a)—English.

History.

Classical Language—full course—i.e., the course as now proposed plus a course of unseens.

Mathematics—'first' course—i.e., Algebra and Trigonometry as proposed by the Faculty.

(b)—English.

History.

Classical Language—'first' course—i.e., the course as now proposed.

Mathematics—full course—as proposed by the Board.

(c)—English.

History.

Classical Language—full course—as in (a).

Logic.

In advocating his motion the Pandit remarked that he had no wish to dwell in detail on the difficulties which his motion was intended to solve; these difficulties had been explained by him at length at the last meeting the minutes of which were before the Fellows. He now only wished to point out that the remedy proposed by him was the only one that could take effect at once, for it involved no change in the Regulations and hence was not in need of Government sanction. All the other proposals regarding the Intermediate Courses of Study necessitated changes in the Regulations, and could not come in force without the sanction of Government, which could not be obtained before the publication of the Prospectus for the Examinations of 1908.

Pandit Adityaram Bhattacharya seconded the motion. It was, he said, decidedly the best of all the proposals concerning the Intermediate Courses of Study now before the Senate; for in allowing opportunities for a more thorough study of the Classical Languages it distinctly recognised the high importance of that branch of studies. The Senate should remember that the first Chancellor of the University, Sir Alfred Lyall, had pointed to the cultivation of the Classical Languages and their literature as a distinct task marked out for the new University of Allahabad. So far the University had done little or nothing to realise that ideal.

Mr. Ikbāl Kishen (Professor) opposed the motion. Pandit Ganga Nath Jha, he said, wished to divide the Intermediate A Course into three alternative groups of subjects two of which include Mathematics; and this would render Mathematics practically compulsory. Moreover the scheme of studies recommended by the Pandit presented so many alternative courses and so many combinations of subjects that the teaching staff of more than one College would find it very difficult practically to deal with them.

Mr. Sanjiban Ganguli also opposed the motion. The bifurcation of two subjects, he remarked, was sure to cause many inconveniences: it would e.g. much increase the difficulty of arranging time-tables for the classes. Moreover the scheme proposed really narrowed the choice of subjects for the B.A. Examination, in so far as its C Group did not allow of Mathematics. It was desirable that the possibility of taking up Mathematics for the B. A. should be left open to Intermediate students whatever group they chose.

Mr. Ward strongly objected to the suggested bifurcation of Mathematics. The main thing, he said, we should aim at in any reform of the Intermediate Examination was to make it more thorough on special lines: the old courses afforded no proper mental training. A division of Mathematics such as proposed by Pandit Ganga Nath Jha, moreover, would hardly accomplish the object of the proposer; for the first paper of Mathematics alone, as it stands now, was more difficult than the old First Course in Mathematics.

Mr. de la Fosse spoke in favour of the division of Mathematics into a first and second course. The main point to consider, he said, was the amount of Mathematical knowledge possessed by students when entering College. The Matriculation Examination could be passed with 25 per cent marks of the Mathematical papers, the average Entrance man thus was very weak in Mathematics. Opportunities of making up for this deficiency should therefore be allowed and a First Course of Mathematics not so difficult as to render Mathematics on the A side practically prohibitive should be continued.

Mr. Cox remarked that it would be as good as useless to keep up a special First Course of Mathematics, as probably very few students would take it up. The division of Mathematics moreover would give rise to the greatest possible practical inconvenience.

The Rev. Mr. Ewing opposed Pandit Ganga Nath Jha's motion mainly for the reason that there were better schemes for the Intermediate Course before the Senate. It was of importance that students at the Intermediate stage should come into touch with the realities and practical questions of life, and hence the inclusion in the Course of Studies of such subjects as Physiology—as proposed by Mr. Pirie and himself—appeared to have much in its favour.

Mr. Lewis defended Pandit Ganga Nath Jha's scheme against the criticisms to which it had been subjected. Those criticisms, he thought, were of much too sweeping a nature; for the scheme was very ingeniously thought out so as to meet the various requirements of the 'A' side. The Faculty of Science would no doubt be able to define a satisfactory "First Course" in Mathematics.

At this stage of the discussion Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya proposed that under Regulation 34 (3), chap. I, the discussion of Pandit Ganga Nath Jha's motion and of all other motions bearing on the Courses of Study for the Intermediate Examination should be adjourned until the other business before the Meeting had been disposed of.

This proposal was seconded by Mr. Lewis and carried by 35 votes.

Agenda Item No. XIII.

The Meeting thereupon proceeded to consider such applications of candidates for permission to appear at the University Examinations of 1906, as were recommended by the Syndicate.

It was resolved that the following applications be granted (vide Appendix F).

Agenda Item No. XIV.

PROPOSAL No. 1.

Mr. de la Fosse, proposed the following amendments to the rules for travelling allowance to Fellows:—

That in place of the words 'second class' the words 'first class' be substituted in rule 2 (i).

That in place of the words 'three rupees' the words 'five rupees' be substituted in rule 2 (iii).

The motion was seconded by Mr. Lewis.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya opposed the motion on the ground that the finances of the University were not overflowing; it therefore was essential that economy should be practised.

Pandit Adityaram proposed that Mr. de la Fosse's proposal should be referred to the Finance Committee for opinion.

The Vice-Chancellor directed attention to the fact that the grant made by Government for the travelling allowance of Fellows would be continued for only three years more.

Dr. Thibaut thereupon proposed that the Senate should refrain from making any change in the travelling allowance rules before the end of the present year, when there would be ampler material for forming an estimate of the expenditure under this head.

This proposal was seconded by Sir George Knox.

Mr. de la Fosse in opposing the amendment directed attention to the necessity of giving Fellows not residing at Allahabad opportunities for taking part in the work of the University; this in fact was one of the points to which the Government of India attached great importance. He himself, he said, was of opinion that the Government grant was sufficient to meet the expenditure. Should future experience show that this was not the case, the University could ask for a continuance, or increase of the grant, on the ground that the wish of Government had led it into financial trouble.

Mr. Jesse supported Mr. de la Fosse.

Dr. Thibaut's amendment was thereupon put to the vote and lost.

After this the original motion was put to the vote and carried by 27 votes. It was resolved that the travelling allowances to Fellows should be paid at the rates stated in the motion, as soon as Government sanction of the changes in the Rules would have been received.

PROPOSAL No. 3.

The Meeting proceeded to consider a motion by Mr. Lewis to the effect—

That Regulation 3 of Chapter XVI be amended to read as follows:—

3. At the Examination for the Degree of Bachelor of Science every candidate shall be examined in

1. English, and in three of the following subjects:—

2. Mathematics,

4. Chemistry,

3. Physics,

5. Biology.

Mr. Lewis explained that he withdrew the motion in the above form, in favour of an amendment proposed by Mr. H. Cox, viz., "That in the above all words after 'and in' should be omitted, and that there should be added—

"Either (a) Mathematics,

Physics,

Inorganic Chemistry,

or (b) Inorganic Chemistry,

Organic Chemistry,

Biology."

Mr. Cox's amendment thus became the substantive motion.

Pandit Adityaram Bhattacharya expressed his great satisfaction at the widening of the scientific courses, implied in the motion.

The motion thereupon was put to the vote and carried.

PROPOSAL NO. 4.

Mr. Lewis moved—

That the list of Boards of Studies in Regulation 4 of Chapter IV be amended to read as follows:—

(i) Physical Science and Chemistry.

(ii) Biology.

(iii) Mathematics.

(iv) Drawing and Surveying.

The motion was seconded by Mr. Cox, put to the vote and carried.

The hour of the evening being advanced, a proposal for adjournment was carried by 16 votes against 8. Several proposals as to adjournment to a later hour of the same day or to the following day having been discussed and rejected, Sir George Knox proposed "that the Meeting be adjourned till some date in August to be fixed by the Vice-Chancellor."

This proposal was duly seconded and carried by 16 votes against 12.

FROM

S. H. BUTLER, Esq., C.I.E., I.C.S.,

SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT,

United Provinces,

TO

THE REGISTRAR,

ALLAHABAD UNIVERSITY.

Dated 15th January, 1906.

SIR,

In reply to your letter No. G/1671, dated the 5th December, 1905, I am directed to say that the Government is not prepared to make any further grant to the University specially to enable the Fellows to travel first class by Railway. The University is now in a much stronger financial position than it has been and probably it will itself be able to find the extra funds required. It is desirable that the University should be financially independent and a further grant of Rs. 20,000 is about to be made to the University in the current year for strengthening the administration of the University, the inspection of Colleges, and the travelling expenses of Fellows regarding which you will be separately addressed.

FROM

Secretary to Government,United Provinces,

To

THE REGISTRAR,

ALLAHABAD UNIVERSITY.

*Dated 19th January, 1906.*national artment.

In reply to your letter No. G/1413 of 1905, dated 13th October 1905, forwarding a resolution of the Senate of the 4th September, 1905, regarding the purchase by Government of the Darbhanga Castle at a cost of Rs. 35,000 and the grant of a sum of Rs. 20,000 for the construction of an office for the University Registrar, I am directed to say that the Government at all times is ready to receive advice from the Senate, but in the present case it was necessary to approach the Government of India with definite schemes within a period in which it was not possible to consult the Senate, or, in the alternative, to run the risk of not getting grants at all. In the circumstances the Government felt bound in the interests of the Province and the University to formulate demands, which have been before it for a long time, without consulting the University. The money has already been allotted and the allotment cannot be cancelled now.

2. The Government of India have now made a further grant of Rs. 20,000 per annum for four years for administration, inspection and the travelling allowance of Fellows, and Rs. 20,000 per annum for four years towards building an University Library. The sum of Rs. 40,000 will be paid to the University at once and may be spent without further reference to Government on the objects noted, if they are approved by the University.

I have, &c.,

E. A. H. BLUNT,

Under Secretary.for Secretary.

APPENDIX B.

Report of the Committee appointed by the Syndicate, under resolution No. 73 of the Syndicate Minutes, dated 6th January 1906, to submit proposals under Regulation 12 (d), Chapter II, and Regulation 8, Chapter VIII, of the University Regulations, for the appointment of Inspectors for inspecting affiliated colleges.

1. The scheme for the preliminary inspection of colleges drawn up by the Universities of Madras, Calcutta, and the Punjab, were considered in reference to the arrangements to be made by the Allahabad University to give effect to section 23 of the Indian Universities Act of 1904.

2. The questions of the nature and scope of the inspection of a college were discussed. Para. 28 of the Government of India's resolution on Indian Educational Policy, issued on 11th March 1904, lays down that the teaching given in colleges will, instead of being tested mainly or wholly by external examinations, be liable to systematic inspection under the authority of the Syndicate; and that a college will be required, if already affiliated, to show that it continues to comply with the conditions on which the privileges of affiliation were granted.

3. In regard to the question of the nature of the inspection of the teaching, the Committee desire to invite attention to the report of the debate which took place in the Viceroy's Legislative Council on clause 23 (2) of the Indian Universities Bill, published in part VI of the Gazette of India, April 2nd, 1904, and particularly to the Hon'ble Mr. (now Sir T.) Raleigh's statement of the lines upon which the inspection of the teaching should proceed. With the view therein expressed they are in entire agreement, viz., that there should be no attempt at interference on the part of Inspectors with the work of Professors in their own special subjects; but that the Inspectors should endeavour by inquiry on the spot to ascertain generally the quantity and quality of the work done, and should suggest any improvements in the working of the College that may seem needed to promote its efficiency.

4. In regard to the general scope of the inspection, the following points seem to the Committee to be deserving of the particular attention of the Inspectors :—

1. Locality.
2. Site and buildings.
3. Accommodation.
4. Sanitary arrangements.
5. General equipment.
6. Libraries.
7. Laboratories.
8. Governing body.
9. Finance.
10. Staff: qualifications and salaries.
11. Time-Tables.
12. Internal examinations.
13. Discipline.
14. Registers.

Hostels are not included in the above; for under Regulation 3, Chapter X, of the Regulations of the Allahabad University, their inspection is already separately provided for. But if the Inspectors deem it necessary to report upon the boarding accommodation or upon any other matter connected with the college, not included in the above list, they should of course be at liberty to do so.

The Committee do not think it advisable to tie the Inspectors down to following any particular procedure in making their enquiries under the above headings, believing that, if competent Inspectors are appointed, it will be best to leave them as free as possible; for the nature of the enquiry must largely depend upon the circumstances at the time and the condition of each individual college, and that a clear and living tradition in regard to method will develop gradually out of the experience gained through actual inspection work. An important part of the inspection would be the conferences with the Principal and with the whole staff, which should invariably conclude it, and when possible with the Governing Body also. At such conferences a good deal could be disposed of which need not therefore find its way into the report, or might be only briefly touched upon therein.

5. Since the question how the inspection should be exercised has been left to the different Universities to decide, the Committee have no hesitation in expressing their view that the appointment of a body of experts to inspect the teaching in the various subjects of study is not necessary, nor even desirable in the case of the Allahabad University. They are unanimously of opinion that it is not expedient to select men for appointment on the ground of special knowledge in some particular branch of study, but that great weight should be attached to their possessing experience in and proved capacity for inspection work. They recommend that a Inspecting staff of six members be appointed for the period of three years and that out of this number not more than three Inspectors be delegated for the inspection of any individual college; with the proviso that in no case a Principal or Professor take part in the inspection of the college to which he himself belongs. In the case of the inspection of a college outside the United Provinces the Syndicate may invite a Fellow of the Allahabad University with local knowledge, if one is available, to serve on the Board of Inspectors as an additional member.

6. As regards the question of travelling and other allowances to Inspectors the Committee recommend that as there would be a great deal of travelling to be done and the Inspectors would be put to a good deal of expense at times, they should be granted travelling allowance at a liberal scale, namely, double first class fare and Rs. 10 a day while travelling on inspection work and while inspecting.

7. As regards the report of inspection to be submitted by the Inspectors to the Syndicate, the Committee do not recommend that any stereotyped form of report should be prescribed, but that it should be left to the Inspectors to send in a joint report upon any or all of the points mentioned above, concluding with general remarks upon the working of the institution and perhaps suggestions for its improvement. The report should ordinarily avoid going much into detail and should confine itself mainly to observations of a general nature. The report, being a report to the Syndicate, should be treated as confidential. When a reference to the Senate might be necessary under Section 24(3) of the Indian Universities Act, 1904, the report to the Senate should be a report by the Syndicate. The same procedure should be adopted in regard to reports on applications for affiliation under Section 21 (2)(c) of the above Act.

8. The Committee lastly considered the question of the returns to be submitted by colleges for the information of the Syndicate under Regulation 4, Chapter VIII, of the Regulations of the Allahabad University. They are of opinion that the four statements given in the appendix to this report would serve all the purposes of inspection.

The forms should be filled up in triplicate and submitted to the Registrar annually not later than 1st October. The return should be those for the last scholastic year.

APPENDIX A.

NOTE ON THE ESTABLISHMENT OF THE PROPOSED UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW.

1. The encouragement and the cultivation of a sound study of Law and Jurisprudence as a part of our University system has been recognised from very early times. The Hon'ble the Court of Directors of the East India Company in their celebrated despatch to the Governor-General of India in Council, dated 19th July, 1854, referred to the subject in the following terms :—

“30. It will be advisable to institute in connection with the Universities professorships for the purpose of the delivery of lectures in various branches of learning for the acquisition of which, at any rate in an advanced degree, facilities do not exist in other institutions in India. Law is the most important of these subjects; and it will be for you to consider whether, as was proposed in the plan of the Council of Education to which we have before referred, the attendance upon certain lectures, and the attainment of a degree in law, may not, for the future, be made a qualification for Vakeels and Munsifs instead of, or in addition to, the present system of examination, which must however be continued in places not within easy reach of a University.”

In the North-Western Provinces in the early seventies, the only provision which existed for imparting education in law were the law classes established about that time. They were in the charge of a professor of law who delivered his lectures in English (whose salary was fixed at Rs. 600 per mensem) and a sub-professor of law (whose salary was Rs. 300 per mensem) who delivered his lectures in Hindustani. The Government then spent Rs. 10,800 in maintaining the law classes, a minute fraction only of which sum was recovered in the shape of the tuition fees charged.

Later on with the spread of education in these Provinces several colleges engaged the services of some local lawyers to deliver a course of lectures in law, for preparing students for the examination for the degree of B. L. of the Calcutta University, and afterwards, on the establishment of our University, for its LL.B degree. These law classes are generally in charge of a single lecturer, who lectures a few hours in a week. No adequate law library was provided anywhere.

2. The Indian Universities Commission of 1902 which was appointed to examine and report on the system of our University education in the various parts of India thus summarised the result of their observations on the subject of education in law at page 35 of their report :—

“ Our summary shows that in each University except Calcutta the teaching of law has been more or less centralised. The results are far from satisfactory, and we recommend that the question of creating or maintaining and improving an adequate central school of law should be taken up without delay at each of the Universities. The professors of such a school including any University professors who may be connected with it may be judges or practising lawyers who meet their classes in the morning or evening out of court hours. This arrangement is not in all respects convenient, but it is the only arrangement by which we can secure the services of men possessing a thoroughly practical knowledge of the subject. There should be a staff of tutors, competent to help students in their reading and, above all, there should be a good law library, where students may learn for themselves how to find authority for the propositions which they are required to master. We believe that a school such as we describe can be made self-supporting. In the council or governing body it is desirable that the Bench and the Bar of the local High Court should be strongly represented.”

3. The Government of India in their circular letter No. 854-863, dated 24th October, 1902, in dealing with certain points in the report of the said Commission, thus referred to this subject :—

“That some reform is called for in the interest of a branch of education, which is of peculiar importance in India will, the Governor-General believes, be generally admitted. No one will attempt to justify a system under which it is possible for the legal education of students to be entrusted to a single teacher who is supposed to deliver formal lectures on all subjects required for the degree of Bachelor of Laws, while no library is provided for students to consult; and no attempt is made to ascertain by means of essays or exercises how far they have assimilated the modicum of information that the lecturer is capable of imparting. That teaching of this kind is not teaching at all, is indeed admitted in substance by those who argue in defence of the present system, that the students do not go to law lectures to learn law but in order to obtain the certificate required by the University of having attended so many lectures and that they can master all their subjects in six months' private reading.”

After proceeding to consider the question how far the maintenance of local law classes in the mofussil was desirable, the views of the Government of India on this point are thus stated :—

“At the same time the Government of India are inclined to agree that, as in the case of arts, a central law college, with fees pitched at a rate commensurate with the commercial value of the education imparted, should be established at each University centre and, if necessary, by the Government. But its object should be to serve as a model; and it should possess no monopoly other than its own merits may secure to it.”

The Government of India enquired particularly of each Local Government to which their circular letter was addressed “as to the desirability of establishing a central college of law and the possibility of making it self-supporting.”

4. In forwarding this general letter to the University the Local Government in its letter No. $\frac{657}{XV-391A}$, dated 15th November, 1902, observe :—

“In para. 17 the Government of India state that it is generally admitted that some reform is called for in the teaching of law, and approve generally of the idea of establishing central law colleges. The Syndicate might consider in what manner effect should be given to the proposal to start a central law college, and whether the establishment of law classes might not be made to fall in with a scheme of post graduate education and a beginning might thereby be made towards converting the Allahabad University into a teaching University. For the suggested central law college Allahabad would appear to be the most suitable place since there would be no difficulty in securing competent lecturers in all branches of law from among the advocates of the High Court.”

5. The Faculty of Law at its meeting held on the 6th March 1903 considered the question and the conclusion at which it arrived was formulated as follows :—

“That this Faculty would respectfully recommend to the Syndicate that, in their opinion, the time has come when this University might be a teaching University so far as law is concerned; that in view of the fact that the Government service both in the Judicial and Executive Branches is largely recruited from LL.B. graduates, and of the importance of a sound and thorough training in law not only for them but also for lawyers in general, the Government may be urged to make a suitable annual grant to the funds of the University for the next five years, to be regulated at the end of that period in accordance with the income derived by the University from fees for teaching and for examining in law. The University might on its side guarantee that there would be no reduction in the scale of fees now current in the Muir College and the University Law Examinations, and the sum thus received from Government would be applied to the strengthening of the Law Department and to no other object.”

The Syndicate appointed a sub-committee to prepare a scheme for the establishment of a law college which after the approval by the Syndicate was submitted to the Government of the United Provinces which had already in its Resolution No. $\frac{51}{\text{XV}-48}$, dated 12th January, 1906, in reviewing the report of the Director of Public Instruction for the United Provinces for the year ending 31st March, 1905, mentioned the establishment of a law college as one of the more urgent educational measures which were awaiting funds.

6. For the maintenance of the proposed University Law School a sum of about Rs. 22,000 or 24,000 a year is needed as will appear from the figures given below:—

	Rs.
For the salary of the Principal at Rs. 1,000 per mensem	12,000
For the salary of the Professor of Law at Rs. 400 per mensem	4,800
For the salary of the two Assistant Professors of Law at Rs. 250 per mensem for each ..	6,000
	<hr/> 22,800
For library, office, contingencies, &c. ..	1,200
	<hr/> 24,000

The two law readers now attached to the Muir Central College draw a salary of Rs. 150 per mensem. If the same pay is allowed to them, until the expansion of the law class permits an increase in their salary, the present expenditure of the University Law School may be put down at Rs. 21,600 per year.

7. To meet the expenditure it is proposed to invest, for the present, the sum of one lakh of rupees which the Government of the United Provinces has generously offered in G. P. notes of the $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent loans. This will bring an income of Rs. 3,500 a year. It is also proposed to ask the University to hand over from the 1st of July, 1906, the savings from the law examinations (which may be estimated at Rs. 3,000) for the maintenance of the law school.

The High Court annually holds an examination for the admission of vakils of the High Court and pleaders and mukhtars. It might be asked to hand over from the same date the savings of its law examinations for the maintenance of this school. It is estimated that a sum of about Rs. 2,000 will be available from this source and it will be necessary to address the High Court and the Government on this subject. This brings up the fund available to Rs. 8,500 a year

The average number of students on the rolls of the M. C. College law classes is about 150 (one hundred and fifty) at present, and the number is steadily rising.

After 1st January, 1908, when notification No. 395 of 10th February, 1905, of the local High Court comes into force, every candidate for admission to the examination prescribed for admission as vakils and pleaders will be required to study two years in a law class recognised by the University. The number of law students on the rolls of the various law classes in the United Provinces in recent years is shown below :—

On 31st March 1900	397
Ditto 1901	389
Ditto 1902	326
Ditto 1903	364
Ditto 1904	456
Ditto 1905	480

The number is steadily rising. About 50 per cent of these might be expected to join the University Law School. In the next four years it may confidently be expected that the number of students in the University Law School will be well over 200. The income from admission and tuition fees with 200 students is estimated at Rs. 16,600 per year, which with the sum of Rs. 8,500 mentioned above will be sufficient to meet all the expenses of the law school.

8. With 150 students only (which is the number on the rolls at present) the income from the tuition and admission fees will be say Rs. 12,000 a year. To meet the deficit for the next four years, the Senate might be asked to allot to law an eighth part only of the annual grant of the sum of Rs. 20,000 which has been made by the Government of India to the University. This would secure Rs. 2,500 annually for four years.

The history of the Madras Law College [which, after supporting itself, leaves a large surplus in the hands of the Government—vide appendix (i)] shows how an institution like this can grow. The Bombay Government School of Law and the Lahore Law College, both institutions founded only in recent years, are now practically self-supporting and we may safely expect the same of the proposed school.

9. Till funds are available for the construction of a suitable building and the purchase of the necessary furniture we would have to ask the Government to permit the law classes being held as hitherto in the premises of the Muir Central College.

The Government of India has recently granted Rs. 80,000 for a library to the University. An eighth of this sum (as in the case of the other grant of Rs. 20,000 a year) might be allotted for the law section of the library.

10. A draft of the rules regulating the constitution and working of the proposed school of law is herewith appended.

11. To give effect to this scheme it will be necessary—

- (a) to open a separate fund entitled "the University Law School Fund" in the accounts of the University;
- (b) to transfer to this fund the balance of the receipts for the examination fees of the LL.B. examinations after defraying the costs of conducting the said examinations;
- (c) to ask the High Court to give to this fund all the savings from receipts for the examination fees after defraying the costs of the examinations conducted by the Examination Board and to request the Government to sanction this being done;

- (d) to allot Rs. 2,500 a year out of the fund of Rs. 20,000 a year granted by the Government of India for four years to the University with effect from the date the first amount of Rs. 20,000 of this grant was paid, and similarly to allot Rs. 10,000 for the formation of a law library out of the fund of Rs. 80,000 granted by the Government of India for a University library ;
- (e) to ask the Government to transfer all receipts for the admission and tuition fees of the law classes attached to the Muir Central College to this Fund with effect from 1st July, 1906, the University on its part undertaking to meet the charges for the salaries of the law professors and readers and contingent charges from that date ;
- (f) to invest the sum of rupees one lakh which the Government proposes to grant in Government Promissory Notes of $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent loans and place the said investment and its income to the credit of this fund ;
- (g) to ask the Government to permit the University Law School being held in the Muir Central College, as at present, until a separate building and the necessary furniture is provided for the University Law School.

It is proposed that this Faculty do approve and recommend for adoption by the Syndicate and the Senate this scheme for the establishment of the University School of Law.
